September 18, 1995—House completed all general debate, but came to no resolution thereon. Consideration will resume at a later date. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD PAGES H9074-75, H9116-21.

October 18, 1995—Passed House as amended by vote of 388-37. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD PAGES H10213-47. Agreed to the following amendments: (1) the Young (AK) en bloc amendment that makes numerous technical corrections and provides that regional councils may establish a system of fees in order to cover the costs of placing "observers" aboard fishing vessels if they are required; requires that if observers are needed in fisheries governed under an individual transferrable quota (ITQ) system fishery, they be present at a level that insures "statistically significant" enforcement of catch quotas; and requires fish processing vessels in ITQ fisheries to carry enough observers to ensure the vessels are monitored 24 hours per day; (2) the Young (AK) amendment that allows the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) to contract out for assessments of fishery stocks; (3) the Studds amendment that ensures that current restrictions on the sale and transportation of undersized lobsters are maintained; (4) the Miller (CA) amendment that eliminates the transferability of individual quota shares in future individual quota systems; (5) the Farr (CA) amendment that requires regional fishery management councils to include in their fishery management plans measures that would minimize to the extent practicable any adverse impact of fishing on essential habitat (agreed to by vote of 251-162); (6) the Metcalf amendment that clarifies the authority of the Secretary of Commerce in regard to amending or limiting fishery management plans and clarifies that this legislation will not require a reallocation of previously issued quota shares for any existing ITQ system; (7) the Underwood amendment that authorizes the negotiation of agreements that permit foreign interests to fish within the 200-mile exclusive economic zones of the United States Pacific insular territories (modified provisions of H.R. 2369); (8) the Gilchrest amendment that modifies the definition of "optimum yield" in order to prohibit regional fishery management councils from allowing a fish stock to be harvested at a rate that exceeds the maximum sustainable yield for that fishery (agreed to by vote of 304-113); (9) the Traficant amendment that expresses the sense of Congress that to the greatest extent possible all equipment and products purchased with funds made available by the bill be American-made; (10) the Goss amendment that strikes provisions that would delay the implementation of new bycatch reduction technology in the shrimp trawl fishery for one year or until the Department of Commerce completed a cost benefit analysis, evaluated the ecological impacts and developed other technological devices or alternative fishing operations for minimizing incidental mortality (agreed to by vote of 294-129); (11) the Miller (CA) amendment that requires regional fishery management councils, in developing fishery management plans, take into account the historic participation of local community-based fishing fleets in the fishery and provide for the sustained participation of those fleets and communities; and (12) the Hayes amendment, as modified, that prohibits the importation of fish into the United States unless the Secretary of Commerce certifies that the country of origin has implemented and enforced laws requiring fish excluded devices on that country's fishing industry in the same manner as the laws are enforced in the United States. The Frank (MA) amendment was offered but subsequently withdrawn that sought to strike provisions of the bill that authorized the Commerce Department to collect fees for fishing quotas in order to offset the costs of implementing, managing, and enforcing ITQ systems in fisheries.

October 19, 1995—Referred to Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

September 27, 1996—House passed S. 39 (Senate companion measure to H.R. 39). Includes provisions of H.R. 39.
