Preface

In this report, part of an annual series that began in 1997, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) reviews its activities under the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995. The report covers public laws enacted and legislation considered by the Congress in 2008 that would impose federal mandates on state, local, or tribal governments or on the private sector.

The report was prepared by Leo Lex, chief of the State and Local Government Cost Estimates Unit of CBO's Budget Analysis Division, under the supervision of Theresa Gullo and Pete Fontaine; and by Patrice Gordon, chief of the Private-Sector Mandates Unit of CBO's Micro-economic Studies Division, under the supervision of Joseph Kile.

The CBO staff members who prepare the analyses of federal mandates in legislative proposals are listed in Appendix C. Those individuals also assisted in the preparation of this report.

Leah Mazade edited the report, and Christine Bogusz proofread it. Maureen Costantino took the cover photograph and, with the assistance of Donald Price, prepared the report for publication. Lenny Skutnik printed the initial copies, Linda Schimmel handled the print distribution, and Simone Thomas prepared the electronic version for CBO's Web site (www.cbo.gov).

A Review of CBO's Activities in 2008 Under the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act

The federal government—through laws and regulations—sometimes requires that state, local, and tribal governments and various entities in the private sector expend resources to achieve national goals. In 1995, the Congress enacted and the President signed the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) to ensure that, during the legislative process, the Congress receives information about potential federal mandates before passing a piece of legislation.

UMRA defines a legislative provision as a mandate if that provision, when enacted, would:

- Impose an enforceable duty on state, local, or tribal governments or on the private sector;¹
- Reduce or eliminate funding authorized to cover the costs of existing mandates; or
- Increase the stringency of conditions that apply to certain mandatory programs or make cuts in federal funding for those programs.

Duties imposed as conditions of federal assistance or requirements tied to participating in voluntary federal programs generally are not considered mandates as defined by UMRA.

UMRA established procedures for providing information to the Congress about proposed federal mandates on state, local, and tribal governments and on private-sector entities. The law requires the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) to prepare mandate statements for bills that are approved by authorizing committees. In those statements, CBO must address whether the direct costs of the federal mandates in a bill would be greater than the thresholds established in UMRA and identify any funding that the bill would provide to cover those costs.² In 2008, those thresholds, which are adjusted annually for inflation, were $68 million for intergovernmental mandates and $136 million for private-sector mandates.³ If CBO cannot estimate the cost of a mandate, its statement must indicate that such an estimate is not feasible and explain why.

Not all legislation is subject to UMRA's requirements. In enacting the law, the Congress decided that instances might arise in which budgetary considerations—such as who would bear the costs that a law might impose—should not be part of the debate about a legislative proposal. Thus, bills and other legislation that seek to enforce constitutional or statutory rights, implement international treaty obligations, are necessary for national security, or alter provisions of the Social Security Act related to old-age, survivors', or disability benefits, among other things, are excluded from a review for mandates. (For further details, see Appendix A, which outlines UMRA's key provisions as they apply to CBO.)

In addition to the procedures UMRA established for providing information to the Congress, the law also lays out procedural rules for both the House of Representatives

1. UMRA does not define the term “enforceable duty,” but CBO has interpreted it as encompassing both required and prohibited actions by public and private entities.

2. The Joint Committee on Taxation examines legislative provisions that affect the tax code to identify federal mandates and estimates their costs. CBO's mandate statements incorporate such information.

3. The intergovernmental and private-sector thresholds established in UMRA were $50 million and $100 million, respectively, in 1996.

and the Senate to encourage Members to take information about mandates into account when they consider legislation. Those rules are enforced through the use of points of order. A point of order can be raised in the House or Senate against the consideration of legislation if the committee reporting a bill has not published a statement by CBO on intergovernmental and private-sector mandates. In addition, Members of Congress may raise a point of order against legislation that seeks to create an intergovernmental mandate with costs above the threshold specified in UMRA—unless the legislation authorizes or provides funding to cover those costs. If a point of order is raised under UMRA, each chamber resolves the issue according to its established rules and procedures.

CBO prepares a mandate statement at some point during the legislative process for most of the legislation considered by the Congress. In some instances, though, as noted in the tables that are part of this report, CBO does not review a mandate prior to its enactment. That situation may occur when legislation is passed without being considered by a committee (the point at which CBO generally provides its estimates); when a bill is amended, after CBO's review, on the floor or in conference to include a provision that contains a mandate; or, in some cases, when a mandate is included in an appropriation bill, which are not routinely reviewed by CBO for mandates under UMRA.

The number of bills or other legislative proposals that contain mandates and the number of individual mandates that appear in proposed legislation generally differ. Because the House and the Senate may consider the same or similar mandates in more than one piece of legislation, the number of bills that contain mandates can exceed the number of individual mandates considered by the Congress in any given year. Conversely, because one bill may contain several mandates, the number of mandates can exceed the number of bills.

The tables in this report identify mandates in public laws and in other legislation considered by the Congress in 2008:

- Table 1 is a tally of mandates in public laws enacted in 2008;
- Table 2 on page 4 and Table 3 on page 9 list laws enacted in 2008 that contained intergovernmental and private-sector mandates;
- Table 4 on page 16 and Table 5 on page 17 list the individual mandates that CBO reviewed in 2008 whose costs would or could exceed UMRA's thresholds;
- Table 6 on page 21 is a tally of CBO's mandate statements between 2004 and 2008; and
- Table 7 on page 22 and Table 8 on page 28 list the bills and proposals CBO reviewed under UMRA in 2008 that contained mandates.

Most of the legislation that the Congress considered last year did not contain federal mandates as defined in UMRA. That finding is consistent with experience under the law since its enactment; on average, CBO has reviewed about 580 pieces of legislation each year and identified intergovernmental and private-sector mandates in an average of 13 percent and 16 percent of them, respectively. In 2008, just over 8 percent of the legislation that CBO reviewed contained intergovernmental mandates, and 14 percent contained private-sector mandates (see Tables 7 and 8). Again, consistent with experience, lawmakers enacted few mandates last year whose costs, in CBO's estimation, exceeded UMRA's thresholds. Only a small fraction of the public laws enacted since UMRA became effective in 1996 have contained federal mandates with costs estimated to exceed the threshold. (Appendix B lists those mandates.)

Table 1.Summary of Laws Enacted in 2008 That Contained Mandates

In 2008, the Congress and the President enacted 285 public laws. Nineteen contained at least one intergovernmental mandate as defined in UMRA, and 29 contained one or more private-sector mandates. In all, those new laws contained only 1 intergovernmental and 15 private-sector mandates with costs that exceeded the statutory thresholds in UMRA of $68 million and $136 million, respectively. CBO could not determine whether costs for another 13 private-sector mandates would be above or below the threshold. (For the number of intergovernmental and private-sector mandates enacted during the 2004–2008 period with estimated costs that exceeded the thresholds, see Table B-1 in Appendix B.)

Laws Enacted in 2008 That Contained Intergovernmental Mandates

CBO estimates that most intergovernmental mandates—those that impose duties on state, local, or tribal governments—enacted in 2008 will not impose significant costs on those governments. Of the 40 intergovernmental mandates enacted in 19 laws during 2008, only 1 has costs that CBO estimates will exceed the threshold established in UMRA (for 2008, $68 million). That mandate requires commuter railroads to install train-control technology and is shown in the table in bold-faced type for Public Law 110-432. (Mandates contained in that law and in others that have costs below the threshold are shown in the regular font.) Only 11 intergovernmental mandates with costs estimated to exceed the annual threshold have been enacted since UMRA became effective in 1996.

Public Law	Title of Legislation	Description of Mandate	Was Mandate Reviewed by CBO Before Enactment? ^a
Laws Containing Intergovernmental Mandates with Costs Above the Statutory Threshold
110-432	Railroad Safety Improvement Act of 2008	Requires commuter railroads to install train-control technology	No
		Requires railroads to limit the number of hours worked by employees, certify and train employees, comply with new safety standards and procedures, and report information about grade crossings	Yes
		Preempts state laws that require railroads to use certain technology at highway-rail crossings	Yes
		Preempts state laws that require operators of solid-waste facilities to secure a permit before operating such facilities	Yes
Laws Containing Intergovernmental Mandates with Costs Below the Statutory Threshold
110-181	National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008	Prohibits defense contractors from hiring senior Department of Defense officials within two years after those officials leave the department without first ensuring that the officials have received permission from an ethics board to accept a position	No
		Increases the number of reservists and active-duty service members in the armed forces, thus increasing the cost of existing mandates	Yes
		Requires state, local, and tribal governments, as employers, to comply with new leave requirements under the Family and Medical Leave Act	Yes

- a. In some cases, mandates may have been reviewed in 2007, during the first session of the 110th Congress.
- b. Public Law 110-246 repealed Public Law 110-234 and amendments made to it, effective on the date of enactment of Public Law 110-246. The mandates in both laws were identical, so only Public Law 110-246 is listed here.

Table 3.Laws Enacted in 2008 That Contained Private-Sector Mandates

Of the public laws enacted in 2008, 29 contained one or more private-sector mandates, for a total of 64 such mandates enacted in 2008. Eight of those 29 laws contained 15 mandates that CBO estimates will impose costs on the private sector that exceed the annual threshold established in UMRA—in 2008, $136 million. (Those 15 mandates appear in the table in bold-faced type.) By comparison, of the public laws enacted from 2004 through 2007, 20 of them contained 30 mandates with estimated costs above the threshold.

The laws enacted in 2008 also contained 13 private-sector mandates that, in total, have costs that may be above the threshold, although CBO could not make a clear determination in those cases. (Those mandates appear in the table in italicized type.) All of the other private-sector mandates enacted in 2008, CBO estimates, will impose costs below the annual threshold established in UMRA and appear in the regular font. (Appendix B lists the intergovernmental and private-sector mandates enacted since 1996 that have estimated costs that exceed the thresholds.)

- b. Public Law 110-246 repealed Public Law 110-234 and amendments made to it, effective on the date of enactment of Public Law 110-246. All of the mandates in Public Law 110-234 are included in Public Law 110-246, so only Public Law 110-246 is listed here.
- c. The housing-related GSEs, or government-sponsored enterprises, include Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, and the Federal Home Loan Banks.
- d. The costs of several of the mandates in Public Law 110-314 are uncertain. However, CBO estimates that the overall cost of the mandates in the law exceeds UMRA's threshold for private-sector mandates.
- e. The Joint Committee on Taxation analyzed legislative provisions amending the Internal Revenue Code to identify private-sector mandates.
- f. The Joint Committee on Taxation reviewed a tax provision in H.R. 6275 that would have denied the deduction to major integrated oil companies and frozen the current deduction for other oil and gas producers. The provision as enacted in Public Law 110-343 freezes the deduction for all oil and gas producers (large and small). Both versions of the mandate have estimated costs that exceed the threshold.
- g. CBO reviewed this mandate as part of H.R. 2095, the Federal Railroad Safety Improvement Act of 2007.

Intergovernmental Mandates Reviewed by CBO in 2008 Whose Costs Would Exceed the Statutory Threshold or Whose Costs Could be Above or Below the Statutory Threshold

In 2008, CBO identified one intergovernmental mandate in legislation with costs exceeding UMRA's statutory threshold (in 2008, $68 million). In two other cases, CBO could not determine whether the costs of the mandates would exceed the threshold because the scope of the entities that would be affected was uncertain and the nature of future regulations was unknown. None of those mandates were enacted.

Topic	Description of Mandate	Was a Version Enacted?	Did the Enacted Version Exceed the Threshold?
Intergovernmental Mandates with Costs Above the Statutory Threshold
Sewage Overflow	Requires publicly owned treatment works to monitor, report, and notify the public and public health authorities about sewer overflows (H.R. 2452; S. 2080)	No	n.a.
Intergovernmental Mandates Whose Costs Might or Might Not Exceed the Statutory Threshold
Commodity Investment Limits	Imposes limits on the amount of commodity-based securities that investors may hold and establishes reporting requirements for pension funds (H.R. 6604)	No	n.a.
Water Quality	Requires public water systems to monitor for perchlorate and to decrease its presence in water supplies (S. 150)	No	n.a.

Notes: UMRA = Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995; n.a. = not applicable.

The mandates in this table were identified by the Congressional Budget Office when a bill was reported by an authorizing committee or when CBO was asked to formally review a bill. In some cases, CBO issued more than one formal mandate statement for a topic.

As noted in Table 2, one mandate with costs estimated to exceed the threshold became law in 2008: a requirement in Public Law 110-432 that commuter railroads install train-control technology. Unlike the mandates listed in this table, the mandate on commuter railroads was not reviewed by CBO prior to its enactment.

Table 5.

Private-Sector Mandates Reviewed by CBO in 2008 Whose Costs Would Exceed the Statutory Threshold or Whose Costs Could be Above or Below the Statutory Threshold

In 2008, CBO identified 19 private-sector mandates whose costs were estimated to exceed the annual threshold of $136 million under UMRA. Seven of those mandates were enacted, as were 8 others that had not been reviewed by CBO during the course of the year. (Those mandates are identified in Table 3.) In addition, CBO identified 13 separate private-sector mandates for which the agency could not determine whether the costs would be above or below the threshold. In 6 of those instances, CBO could not determine the costs of the mandates because the mandates require regulatory action to implement and there was no basis for predicting the cost of those future regulations. In the other 7 cases, uncertainty about the mandate's scope (both about how extensive its requirements would be and who would be affected) made it impossible to estimate costs. Two of the mandates with uncertain costs listed below were enacted.

Topic	Description of Mandate	Was a Version Enacted?	Did the Enacted Version Exceed the Threshold?
Private-Sector Mandates with Costs Above the Statutory Threshold
Availability of Deposited Funds	Requires depository institutions to increase the amount of funds from certain deposits that must be made available for withdrawal by account holders within standard periods (H.R. 6871)	No	n.a.
Chemical Facility Security	Requires owners and operators of certain chemical facilities to submit information to the Department of Homeland Security and to take measures to protect the public from unauthorized chemical releases (H.R. 5577)	No	n.a.
Climate Change	Requires covered facilities to participate in cap-and-trade allowance programs to reduce greenhouse-gas emissions (S. 2191; S. 2191 with an amendment; S. 3036)	No	n.a.
Credit Card Regulation	Requires creditors to submit detailed information to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve and prohibits creditors from engaging in certain practices related to issuing credit cards and billing charges (H.R. 5244)	No	n.a.
Customs User Fees	Extends customs user fees (H.R. 2419—Conference)	Yes (P.L. 110-246) ^a	Yes
Excise Tax on Coal	Extends the excise tax on coal (H.R. 6049) ^b	Yes (P.L. 110-343) ^a	Yes
Health Information Privacy	Requires entities that handle health information to comply with new regulations related to the usage, disclosure, and privacy of such information (H.R. 6357)	No	n.a.
Housing Fund	Requires Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to contribute to a new affordable housing fund and comply with new requirements (H.R. 3221; Senate draft bill—Federal Housing Finance Regulatory Reform Act of 2008)	Yes (P.L. 110-289) ^a	Yes

Notes: The mandates in this table were identified by the Congressional Budget Office when a bill was reported by an authorizing committee or when CBO was asked to formally review a bill. In some cases, CBO issued more than one formal mandate statement for a topic.

UMRA = Unfunded Mandates Reform Act; n.a. = not applicable; P.L. = Public Law; OCS = Outer Continental Shelf; CNMI = Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

- a. The full names and dates of enactment of the public laws referred to in this table follow (ordered by law number):
 - Public Law 110-229, Consolidated Natural Resources Act of 2008, enacted May 8, 2008;
 - Public Law 110-246, Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, enacted June 18, 2008;
 - Public Law 110-287, A joint resolution approving the renewal of import restrictions contained in the Burmese Freedom and Democracy Act of 2003, enacted July 29, 2008;
 - Public Law 110-289, Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, enacted July 30, 2008; and
 - Public Law 110-343, Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008, enacted October 3, 2008.
- b. The Joint Committee on Taxation examines legislative provisions affecting the tax code to identify federal mandates and estimate their costs. Such information is incorporated into CBO's mandate statements.
- c. A provision that freezes the deduction for major integrated oil companies and freezes the current deduction for other oil and gas producers was enacted in Public Law 110-343. That provision is similar to one reviewed in H.R. 6275 that would deny the deduction for the major oil companies and freeze the deduction for other companies.
- d. A provision that requires an immediate tax on deferred compensation paid by certain foreign entities was enacted in Public Law 110-343.
- e. A provision requiring brokers to report their customers' basis in securities transactions was enacted in Public Law 110-343.

Table 6.Number of Mandate Statements Transmitted by CBO, 2004 to 2008

CBO provides mandate statements to the Congress for most of the bills that are reported by authorizing committees and for many other bills and proposed amendments. Most of that legislation is never enacted; of the proposals that are enacted, most contain no federal mandates as defined in UMRA. In 2008, CBO reviewed 679 bills and other legislative proposals, and only 8 percent (57 bills or proposals) contained intergovernmental mandates, the smallest percentage of such mandates in any year since UMRA's enactment. (The average from 2004 to 2007 was 16 percent.) About 14 percent (96 bills) of CBO's estimates in 2008 identified private-sector mandates (compared with 18 percent, on average, for the 2004–2007 period).

Of the bills and proposals CBO analyzed last year, less than 1 percent had intergovernmental mandates with costs greater than the annual threshold (in 2008, $68 million), and about 3 percent had private-sector mandates with estimated costs that exceeded the 2008 threshold for those mandates ($136 million). Both of those percentages are lower than the average for the preceding four years. (Tables 7 and 8 list all of the bills and proposals containing mandates that CBO reviewed in 2008.)

Source: Congressional Budget Office.

Notes: UMRA = Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

Although not required by law, CBO has completed preliminary reviews and informal estimates for other legislative proposals that are not included in this table.

In some years, CBO prepared more intergovernmental mandate statements than private-sector statements because sometimes the agency was asked to review a specific bill, amendment, or conference report solely for intergovernmental mandates. (In those cases, no private-sector analysis was transmitted to the requesting Member or committee.)

A mandate statement may cover more than one mandate. And because the same mandate sometimes appears in multiple bills, a single mandate may be addressed in more than one CBO mandate statement. For example, only two of the mandate statements CBO transmitted in 2008 identified intergovernmental mandates with costs estimated to exceed the annual threshold of $68 million in that year, and both statements focused on the same mandate as it appeared in two separate bills.

Table 7.

Bills Reviewed by CBO in 2008 That Contained Intergovernmental Mandates

Of the 679 bills or legislative proposals that CBO reviewed for mandates as defined in UMRA, 57 contained—or could contain—intergovernmental mandates. Of those 57 bills, 2 contained mandates with costs that CBO estimated would exceed the statutory threshold established in UMRA (for 2008, $68 million). In cases in which a particular bill was considered by more than one committee, the table lists the various versions of the bill. Mandates whose costs exceed the statutory threshold appear in bold-faced type in the table; mandates with uncertain costs are in italicized type; and mandates with costs below the threshold are depicted in the regular font.

Table 8.Bills Reviewed by CBO in 2008 That Contained Private-Sector Mandates

Of the 679 bills or legislative proposals that CBO reviewed in 2008, 96 contained—or could contain—private-sector mandates. That number includes 23 bills that contained mandates with costs that CBO estimated would exceed the statutory threshold in UMRA (in 2008, $136 million). If a particular bill was considered by more than one committee, the various versions of the bill are included. Mandates whose costs exceed the statutory threshold appear in bold-faced type in the table; mandates with uncertain costs are in italicized type; and mandates with costs below the threshold are depicted in the regular font.

- a. In certain cases, proposed legislation reviewed by CBO contained multiple mandates, some of which did not have costs exceeding the statutory threshold.
 - b. The Joint Committee on Taxation examines legislative provisions that affect the tax code for federal mandates and estimates their costs. Such information is incorporated into CBO's mandate statements.
 - c. The cost of this mandate, if imposed, would fall below the threshold.
 - d. The cost of this mandate depends on future regulatory action and could not be determined.

An Overview of Key Provisions in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act

The Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA) comprises four titles that address how various parts of the federal government should handle proposed and existing mandates imposed on state, local, and tribal governments and on the private sector.

- Title I, Legislative Accountability and Reform, requires the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) and authorizing committees in the Congress to develop and report information about the existence and costs of mandates in proposed legislation. It also establishes a mechanism for bringing that information to the attention of the Congress before such legislation is considered on the floor of the House or Senate.
- Title II, Regulatory Accountability and Reform, applies to actions of federal agencies in implementing federal law. It requires most agencies in the executive branch (except some independent regulatory agencies) to assess the effects of their regulatory actions on state, local, and tribal governments and on the private sector. It also requires that statements about such effects accompany certain significant regulations, that agencies seek input from other levels of government in developing regulations, and that agencies consider alternatives that would ease the financial burden of regulations.
- Title III, Review of Federal Mandates, required the now-defunct Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (ACIR) to prepare three reports: a baseline study of the costs and benefits of federal mandates imposed on state, local, and tribal governments; a review of the impact of unfunded federal mandates on those governments, along with recommendations for easing, consolidating, or terminating mandates; and an annual report identifying federal court rulings that required state, local, or tribal governments to undertake additional responsibilities and activities.¹

- Title IV, Judicial Review, allows for limited judicial review of certain actions by agencies and of rules developed under title II of UMRA.

Key Provisions of Title I of UMRA

Title I of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act attempts to ensure that the Congress receives information about the potential direct costs of federal mandates before enacting legislation. UMRA requires CBO and authorizing committees in the Congress to develop and report information about the existence and costs of mandates in proposed legislation. The act also establishes mechanisms to bring that information to the attention of the Congress before legislation is considered on the floor of the House or Senate.

Defining Mandates and Their Costs

Under UMRA, a mandate is any provision in legislation, statute, or regulation that would impose an enforceable duty on state, local, or tribal governments or the private sector, or that would reduce or eliminate the amount of funding authorized to cover the costs of existing mandates. Duties that are imposed as a condition of federal assistance or that arise from participation in a voluntary federal program are not mandates. In the case of some large entitlement programs under which $500 million or more is provided annually to state, local, or tribal governments, a new condition on, or a reduction in, federal assistance would be a mandate, but only if states lack the flexibility to offset the new costs or the loss of federal funding with reductions elsewhere in the program.

1. ACIR completed and released the report on judicial mandates in July 1995. In January 1996, the commission published a preliminary report on the impact of federal mandates imposed on state and local governments. ACIR received no appropriations after fiscal year 1996 and was terminated at the end of that year.

The scope of UMRA is further narrowed by the fact that legislative provisions that deal with constitutional rights, discrimination, emergency aid, accounting and auditing procedures of grants, national security, treaty ratification, and title II of the Social Security Act (Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance benefits) are excluded from UMRA's procedures.

Direct costs are defined in the law as amounts that mandated entities—governmental or private-sector—would be required to spend to comply with the enforceable duty, including amounts that states, localities, and tribes “would be prohibited from raising in revenues.” Direct costs exclude amounts that mandated entities would spend to comply with applicable laws, regulations, or professional standards in effect when the federal mandate is adopted. In addition, direct costs must be offset by direct savings to the mandated entities that would result from compliance with the mandate or by savings from other provisions of the same legislation that govern the same activity as that affected by the mandate.

Because the term “mandate” is defined narrowly, the budgetary impacts that legislation imposes on other governments or the private sector are not all the result of mandates as defined by UMRA. For example, as noted earlier, any costs associated with complying with grant conditions for most new or existing programs are not considered mandate costs under UMRA. Most of the nonmandate costs for other governments or the private sector that CBO identifies when reviewing bills would result from conditions for receiving federal aid or participating in voluntary federal programs.

Determining what constitutes a mandate under UMRA is not a straightforward task. Although an activity (such as sponsoring an immigrant's entry into the United States) may be voluntary, the federal program that governs such activity (immigration laws) is not. In that instance, a bill imposing new requirements on sponsors of immigrants would constitute a mandate under UMRA. In contrast, other federal programs in which participation is voluntary may impose requirements on their participants that, by UMRA's definition, are not mandates. For example, the National Salvage Motor Vehicle Consumer Protection Act of 1999 (S. 655 in the 105th Congress) contained no intergovernmental mandates, according to CBO. The bill would have imposed additional requirements on states that chose to participate in the National Motor Vehicle Title Information System and additional costs, including higher annual operating expenses and one-time charges to modify vehicle titles and print new forms—which together might have exceeded several million dollars for participating states. Distinctions between what is voluntary in a piece of legislation and what is mandatory are not always clear. But state, local, and tribal governments may incur significant costs under a proposed law when they participate voluntarily. CBO identifies those costs whenever possible.

In addition, measuring the costs of extending a mandate that is set to expire has, in the past, presented CBO with difficulty in determining whether the statutory thresholds would be exceeded. UMRA is unclear about whether the incremental costs of such an extension should be measured as if the mandate would expire or as if the mandate would continue. That ambiguity has, in previous years, led CBO to report costs using both comparisons. CBO has concluded that the costs of extending a mandate in such cases should be estimated relative to the costs that would be incurred if the mandate were to expire. That method of measuring costs is consistent with the way that certain federal costs are scored and allows for a threshold determination in cases where costs can be estimated.

Mandate Cost Statements: CBO's Role

The law requires CBO to give any Congressional authorizing committee that reports a bill a statement about the direct costs of any mandates that CBO identifies in the bill. If the total direct costs of all mandates in the bill are above a specified threshold in any of the first five fiscal years in which the mandate is effective, CBO must provide an estimate of those costs (if feasible) and the basis of its estimate. The statutory thresholds are $50 million for intergovernmental mandates and $100 million for private-sector mandates in 1996 dollars, adjusted annually for inflation. (The thresholds in 2008 were $68 million for intergovernmental mandates and $136 million for private-sector mandates.)

The mandate statement that CBO prepares must also include an assessment of whether the bill authorizes or otherwise provides funding to cover the costs of any new federal mandate. In the case of intergovernmental mandates, the cost statement must, under certain circumstances, estimate the appropriations needed to fund such authorizations for up to 10 years after the mandate takes effect.

Authorizing committees must publish CBO's mandate statements in their reports or in the Congressional Record before a bill is considered on the floor of the House or the Senate. Conference committees must "to the greatest extent practicable" ensure that CBO prepares statements for conference agreements or amended bills if they contain mandates not previously considered by either the House or the Senate or if they impose greater direct costs than the version considered earlier. At the request of a Senator, CBO must estimate the costs of intergovernmental mandates contained in an amendment the Senator may wish to offer.

The Congress may also call on CBO to prepare analyses at other stages of the legislative process. If asked by the chairman or ranking member of a committee, CBO will help committees analyze the impact of proposed legislation, conduct special studies of legislative proposals, or compare a federal agency's estimate of the costs of proposed regulations to implement a federal mandate with CBO's estimate.

Enforcement Mechanisms

Section 425 of UMRA sets out rules for both the House and the Senate that prohibit consideration of legislation unless certain conditions are met. For all reported legislation, consideration is not "in order" unless the committee has published a mandate statement prepared by CBO. That is, UMRA prohibits the consideration of a reported bill unless the committee has published a statement from CBO about the costs of any mandates.

The rules preclude consideration for reported legislation that contains intergovernmental mandates with direct costs above the statutory threshold unless the legislation provides direct spending authority or authorizes appropriations sufficient to cover those costs. An authorization of an appropriation will not be sufficient unless the authorized amounts are specified for each year (up to 10 years) after the effective date and the legislation provides a way to terminate or scale back the mandate if the federal agency determines that the appropriated funds are not sufficient to cover those costs.

Finally, although UMRA does not specifically require CBO to analyze the cost of mandates in appropriation bills, it is not in order to consider legislative provisions in such bills—or amendments to them—that increase the direct costs of intergovernmental mandates unless an appropriate CBO statement is provided.

Those rules are not automatically enforced, however; a Member must raise a point of order to enforce them. In the House, if a Member raises a point of order, the full House votes on whether to consider the bill regardless of whether there is a violation. In the Senate, if a point of order is raised, the bill may not be considered unless either the Senate waives the point of order or it is overturned by the chair or the full Senate.²

Appropriation Bills

UMRA does not expressly require CBO to prepare mandate statements for appropriation bills, and CBO has never done so. In general, UMRA's points of order do not apply to the provisions of bills or resolutions reported by the appropriations committees (except legislative provisions), even if those provisions would increase the direct costs of an intergovernmental mandate without providing funding and do not have a mandate statement.³

2. For more information about points of order, see House Committee on Rules, The Unfunded Mandate Point of Order, Parliamentary Outreach Program Newsletter, vol. 106, no. 11 (June 18, 1999), www.rules.house.gov/Archives/pop106_11.htm.
3. In many cases, it is not clear what constitutes a legislative provision in an appropriation bill. Therefore, CBO prepares mandate statements for those bills only when requested. On an informal basis, however, CBO reviews all appropriation bills as they move through the legislative process and alerts the appropriation clerks if it identifies any intergovernmental mandates.

Public Laws That Contain Federal Mandates as Defined in UMRA

This appendix contains a brief description of intergovernmental and private-sector mandates enacted since 1996 with estimated costs that exceed the thresholds established in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA). Table B-1 is a tally of laws enacted during the past five years containing intergovernmental and private-sector mandates.

Intergovernmental Mandates

In the 13 years since UMRA became law, only 11 laws have been enacted that contained intergovernmental mandates with costs above the threshold.¹

An increase in the minimum wage (Public Law [P.L.] 104-188, enacted in 1996, and P.L. 110-28, enacted in 2007): The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimated that the increase required by the bill that became P.L. 104-188 would cost state and local governments (in their capacity as employers) more than $1 billion during the first five years that it was in effect. In the bill that became P.L. 110-28, state, local, and tribal governments would see increased costs of slightly less than $1 billion during the first five years after the increase went into effect.

A reduction in federal funding for administering the Food Stamp program, now the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (P.L. 105-185, enacted in 1998): That change costs the states between $200 million and $300 million a year, in CBO's estimation.

A preemption of state taxes on premiums for certain prescription drug plans (P.L. 108-173, enacted in 2003):

CBO estimated that under that preemption, states would lose about $70 million in revenues in 2006 (the first year in which the mandate was in effect). That drop in revenues was estimated to grow to about $95 million in 2010.

A temporary preemption of states' authority to tax certain Internet services and transactions (P.L. 108-435, enacted in 2004): In CBO's estimation, that preemption would result in a reduction of at least $300 million in state and local government revenues. In 2007, the preemption was extended through most of 2011 by P.L. 110-108. CBO estimates that the preemption will result in a reduction of about $80 million annually in state and local government revenues.

A requirement that state and local governments meet certain standards for issuing driver's licenses, identification cards, and vital-statistics documents (P.L. 108-458, enacted in 2004): CBO estimated that state and local governments would have to spend more than $100 million over the 2005–2009 period to comply with the standards and that the costs in at least one of those years would exceed UMRA's thresholds. The law authorizes the appropriation of funds to provide grants to state and local governments to pay for those costs. In fiscal year 2006, $40 million was appropriated for that purpose.

The elimination of matching federal payments for some child support spending (P.L. 109-171, enacted in 2006): States will be required to use more of their own resources to administer the program, and CBO estimates that additional state spending will total more than $100 million annually, beginning in 2008.

A requirement that state and local governments withhold taxes on certain payments for property and services (P.L. 109-222, enacted in 2006): The Joint Committee on Taxation estimated that, beginning in 2011, the cost of the requirement would exceed the intergovernmental threshold of $70 million established in UMRA.

Note: The thresholds established in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 for intergovernmental and private-sector mandates were $50 million and $100 million, respectively, in 1996. CBO has adjusted the statutory thresholds each year for inflation. In 2008, the thresholds for intergovernmental and private-sector mandates were $68 million and $136 million, respectively.

Requirements on rail and transit owners and operators. P.L. 110-53, enacted in 2007, required all public transit and rail carriers to train workers and submit reports to the Department of Homeland Security. P.L. 110-432, enacted in 2008, requires commuter railroads to install train-control technology. In both cases, CBO estimated that the cost of the requirements would exceed the threshold in at least one of the first five years following enactment.

Private-Sector Mandates

Since UMRA became law, the Congress and the President have enacted more legislation that contained private-sector mandates than legislation containing intergovernmental mandates. Sixty-eight private-sector mandates whose costs CBO determined were higher than the statutory threshold have been enacted since 1996.²

Twenty-one revenue-raising provisions in 14 public laws require individuals or businesses to pay more in taxes (Public Laws 104-188, 104-193, 105-2, 105-34, 105-178, 105-206, 105-277, 106-170, 107-147, 108-357, 109-222, 110-28, 110-140, and 110-343).

Seven mandates affect health insurance—requirements for portability of insurance coverage (P.L. 104-191); requirements for minimum maternity stays (P.L. 104-204); requirements for private health insurance providers under the Medicare program (P.L. 105-33); various requirements relating to pediatric research that apply to drug manufacturers (P.L. 108-155); a prohibition, directed toward providers of group health plans, against offering incentives to military retirees to decline enrollment in a group health plan in favor of relying on the military’s health care program (P.L. 109-364); and two mandates requiring parity in insurance coverage for men-

2. The list of enacted private-sector mandates with costs exceeding the threshold is not necessarily comprehensive for the 1996–2001 period. Each year during that time, CBO analyzed the status of mandates in legislation that it had reviewed during the previous year to determine whether those mandates had been enacted. But some mandates that were enacted were not considered by a committee during the legislative process and thus might not have been reviewed by CBO. To address that issue, CBO in 2002 began to review all public laws enacted each year to determine whether they contained private-sector mandates.

tal health as well as other medical benefits (P.L. 107-147 and P.L. 110-343).

Thirteen mandates affect specific industries—changes in the regulation of telecommunications (P.L. 104-104); changes in milk pricing (P.L. 106-113); a new safety requirement for automobiles (P.L. 107-318); new requirements for credit agencies, lenders, and merchants that handle credit transactions (P.L. 108-159); expanded safety requirements for commercial motor carriers (P.L. 109-59); an increase in federal deposit insurance premiums for banks and credit unions (P.L. 109-171); requirements applying to operators of underground coal mines to install equipment to improve accident preparedness (P.L. 109-236); a requirement for rail carriers and bus services to implement security plans and conduct security training (P.L. 110-53); two sets of requirements for country-of-origin labels for various foods (P.L. 107-171 and P.L. 110-246); new safety requirements for automobiles (P.L. 110-189); new safety standards and labeling requirements for consumer products (P.L. 110-314); and a requirement for railroads to develop and install train-control technology (P.L. 110-432).

Four energy-related mandates have been enacted—two changes to the minimum requirements for renewable fuels in motor fuels (P.L. 109-58 and P.L. 110-140), a set of new corporate average fuel economy standards for motor vehicles (P.L. 110-140), and new energy-efficiency standards for appliances and lighting (P.L. 110-140).

Thirteen mandates involve fees—a fee on airline travel (P.L. 107-71), a fee on manufacturers and importers of tobacco products (P.L. 108-357), an increase in existing fees and new fees for certain patent and trademark services (P.L. 108-447), fees for H1-B visas (P.L. 108-447), three extensions of mining reclamation fees (P.L. 109-54, P.L. 109-234, and P.L. 109-432), a surcharge on the filing fee for passport applications (P.L. 109-167), an extension of user fees for manufacturers of prescription drugs and medical devices (P.L. 110-85), an extension of patent and trademark fees (P.L. 110-161), and three extensions of customs user fees (P.L. 110-138, P.L. 110-246, and P.L. 110-436).

Three mandates affect workers' take-home pay. Two are increases in the minimum wage (P.L. 104-188 and P.L. 110-28), and one is an increase in federal employees' contributions for retirement (P.L. 105-33).

Two mandates affect pension plans. One is an increase in certain premiums paid to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation by sponsors of single-employer and multiemployer defined-benefit pension plans (P.L. 109-171); the other is a shortened schedule for vesting in private retirement funds (P.L. 109-280).

One mandate imposes new requirements on sponsors of immigrants (P.L. 104-208).

One mandate changes procedures for collecting and using campaign contributions (P.L. 107-155).

One mandate changes procedures for administering bankruptcy claims (P.L. 109-8).

One mandate requires Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to contribute to a fund for affordable housing programs (P.L. 110-289).

One mandate limits possible recoveries on terrorism-related lawsuits against Libya (P.L. 110-301).
