Farm Service Agency

Craig McCain State Executive Director, Louisiana

Craig McCain was appointed by the Trump Administration to serve as the state executive director of the Louisiana USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) in November 2017.

McCain grew up working on his family's farm in the small farming community of Winnsboro, Louisiana. When he graduated from high school, he left the farm and enrolled in Northeast Louisiana University, earning a degree in agribusiness in 1985.

McCain started his career with FSA as a county operations trainee in February 1986. After successfully completing the training program, he served for nearly 25 years as the county executive director in three FSA offices in Louisiana. He then served three years as a district director.

During his career with USDA, he has served on several different task forces responsible for writing FSA policy and developing software applications. McCain has also participated in the development and presentation of a number of state and national office training sessions and has had the opportunity to serve numerous agricultural interests across the state.

McCain has been married to his wife, Kim, for over 30 years. They have three daughters and three grandchildren.
