General Comment

As someone who has been a fiduciary for a number of years, I certainly support the intent of the rule to make sure all financial professionals are required to work in the clients best interest. As a fiduciary this the standard that I uphold now. What I do not agree with is how onerous the rule is and believe it will end up causing many advisors to stop working with low and middle income families who truly need help. I strongly believe that this rule needs to be reviewed and much of it needs to be redesigned .
