General Comment

I approve of the Fiduciary Duty Rule in its present form, and object to any delay in applying it.

I want the right to know if any financial advisor I choose to consult will have a financial incentive to lead me toward a fund from which he or she would profit. There may be an important difference between the advice I receive from a neutral party and a salesman. This information should be part of initial disclosure. I have seen no convincing evidence that implementation of the rule would be a disservice to investors.
