

CDC Disease Detective deploying to Africa B-Roll

CUT	Description
00:00-00:42	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill getting assigned gear to take on deployment to West Africa. She learns how to use her cell phone with international calling capabilities.
00:56 - 2:08	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill transfers her gear from a large pelican case to a suitcase. She will take the gear she needs to work in West Africa for thirty days, including protective clothing and equipment.
2:10- 2:36	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill receives the maps she will use to help stop the West Africa Ebola outbreak. CDC Ebola communication and education expert Craig Manning is giving her the maps.
2:46- 2:56	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill and CDC Ebola communications specialist Craig Manning pack the maps of West Africa she will use to trace the contacts of Ebola patients.
2:57 – 3:34	CDC Ebola communications expert Craig Manning and CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill examine a map of West Africa, the site of a large Ebola outbreak.
3:37 - 3:57	CDC Ebola communications expert Craig Manning and CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill examine a map of West Africa, the site of a large Ebola outbreak.
4:00 – 4:16	CDC Ebola communications expert Craig Manning and CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill examine a map of West Africa, the site of a large Ebola outbreak.
4:20 – 4:35	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill receives protective clothing and gear prior to her deployment to West Africa to fight the Ebola outbreak.
4:37 – 4:53	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill receives protective clothing and gear prior to her deployment to West Africa to fight the Ebola outbreak.
4:55 - end	CDC disease detective Rebecca Merrill receives protective clothing and gear prior to her deployment to West Africa to fight the Ebola outbreak.

END TIME: 5:09 minutes