It was a privilege for me to read George Washington's Farewell Address. I am extremely grateful to the Vice President for his designation of me to do so. What added to this pleasure, is that a number of young people from my state - 40 in number, interested in World Affairs were in the gallery of the Senate to hear this address. George Washington when he stated the truths of our representative system of government must have been thinking of these young people to follow and I was delighted that such a fine example of our American youth was here today!
