

AUGUST 2020

PREPARED BY THE SELECT SUBCOMMITTEE ON THE CORONAVIRUS CRISIS,
COMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND COMMERCE, COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS, COMMITTEE ON FINANCIAL SERVICES, COMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT AND REFORM,
COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND LABOR, AND COMMITTEE ON SMALL BUSINESS

A FAILURE TO LEAD

THE TRUMP ADMINISTRATION'S DISASTROUS
RESPONSE TO THE CORONAVIRUS PANDEMIC

ANALYSIS SUMMARY

President Trump Failed to Execute a 50-State Strategy to Test and Trace, Reopen the Economy and Open Schools Safely

President Trump Failed to Prepare and Adequately Respond to the Pandemic, Leading to Millions Infected, Thousands Dead and the Worst Economic Disaster Since the Great Depression

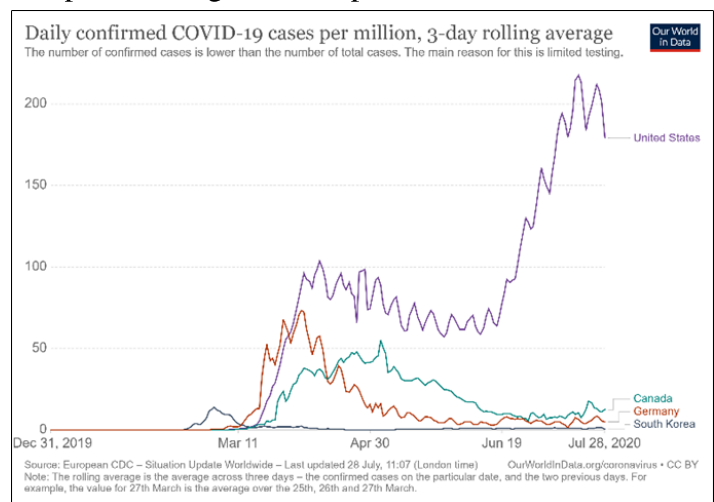

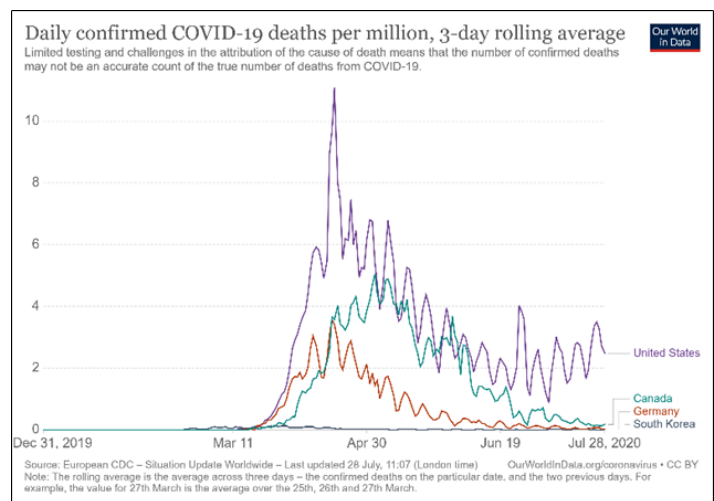

President Trump Failed to Provide the American People the Truth, Fired Watchdogs, Sidelined Experts, Misled the Public and Obstructed Congressional Oversight

A Failure to Lead: The Trump Administration's Disastrous Response to the Coronavirus Crisis

The United States has been hit harder by the coronavirus pandemic than any nation on Earth. Nearly 4.5 million Americans have been infected with COVID-19 and 152,000 are tragically dead. Millions of America's children are food insecure. Families are on the verge of eviction. Tens of millions of Americans have applied for Unemployment Insurance, with more than 1 million people applying each week for 19 weeks straight.

President Trump's deadly denial, distortion and delay has led to the worst federal response to a national emergency in our history. His actions are directly responsible for tens of thousands of needless deaths, tens of millions of people out of work, and mass confusion that has crippled our nation's response. Instead of taking decisive action to stop the spread of the virus, he ignored early warnings, spent months downplaying the crisis and intentionally misled the American public on every aspect of the pandemic. Trump has failed to produce an adequate national testing strategy, failed to develop a plan to safely reopen schools, failed to coordinate a 50-state strategy to respond to the pandemic and failed to use the full power of the Defense Production Act to produce and coordinate the distribution of personal protective equipment (PPE) and critical supplies for our frontline heroes.

Eighty percent of the American public believe the country is heading in the wrong direction – and an overwhelming majority disapprove of President Trump's handling of the response to the coronavirus pandemic. The American people are desperate for leadership from President Trump and his Administration, yet the President continues to make a bad situation worse. He continues to gamble with the lives of the American people and sow mass confusion that has crippled our nation's response. And at every turn, Trump has blocked Congress from investigating the magnitude of his failures and their impact on the health, safety and economic security of our communities and the American people.

President Trump Failed to Execute a 50-State Strategy to Test and Trace, Reopen the Economy and Open Schools Safely

- The U.S. has fared worse than any other country. The United States has just four percent of the world's population but 25 percent of the world's coronavirus infections. More people in the United States have died from the coronavirus than in any other country – and confirmed cases are growing faster in the United States than any other country in the world.
- Trump failed to prepare. Trump eliminated the White House Global Pandemic Response team, ignored early warnings about the virus, failed to heed advice from his own staff to rebuild the national stockpile of critical equipment and withdrew from the World Health Organization, an essential partner in fighting the pandemic.
- Trump failed to provide PPE. Masks, gloves and gowns save lives and stop the spread of the virus. But Trump refused to make full use of the Defense Production Act and other authorities to procure and distribute these supplies, forcing states to compete against each other in the private market and causing shortages and price spikes that continue to this day. Thousands have been unnecessarily exposed as a result, including nursing home residents who account for at least 40 percent of deaths nationwide.
- Trump failed to test and trace. The Administration refused to implement a national strategy to test, trace and contain the virus, and instead has left cities and states to devise their own plans. This has led to widespread testing shortages and delays, allowing the virus to spread farther and faster – and kill more Americans.
- Trump left states to fend for themselves. Trump repeatedly rebuffed state and local calls for federal help to secure PPE, tests and testing materials and other critical medical supplies. The result was every state for itself. Maryland Republican Governor Larry Hogan said: “Eventually, it was clear that waiting around for the President to run the nation’s response was hopeless; if we delayed any longer, we’d be condemning more of our citizens to suffering and death. So, every governor went their own way, which is how the United States ended up with such a patchwork response.”
- Trump bullied states, schools and businesses to prematurely reopen, jeopardizing millions. Trump ignored the government’s own public health experts and urged states to reopen without getting the virus under control. This led to a huge spike in cases and deaths in dozens of states. Now, Trump is trying to do the same thing with schools – pressuring them to reopen without a plan or resources to keep kids, teachers and communities safe.
- Trump failed to protect frontline workers. During the worst worker safety crisis in recent history, the Administration has refused to issue mandatory workplace safety standards that would save lives. As a result, more than 100,000 health care workers have contracted the virus, and workers in meatpacking plants, warehouses and many other workplaces across the country have fallen ill and died from preventable infections.

President Trump Failed to Prepare and Adequately Respond to the Pandemic, Leading to Millions Infected, Thousands Dead and the Worst Economic Disaster Since the Great Depression

- Trump’s failure to contain the virus wrecked the economy. As a result of the severe and prolonged public health crisis, the United States has faced the worst job losses since the Great Depression. More than 54 million Americans – over 30 percent of the labor force – have filed for first-time jobless claims since March – 19 straight weeks with more than 1 million claims.
- Trump falsely claimed the economy is recovering. Trump claimed more than a month ago that “Jobs are rapidly coming back” and the economic recovery is “happening very quickly, way ahead of schedule.” In truth, we remain in a deep recession with record unemployment in April (14.7 percent), May (13.3 percent) and June (11.1 percent), which will remain at least until the virus is contained.
- Trump and Republicans delayed emergency relief and failed working families. Even as millions of Americans struggle financially, the Administration has failed to effectively distribute billions of dollars in federal relief, including about $175 billion for health providers.
 - The Administration also has yet to distribute more than $8 billion for testing.
 - Millions of Americans have not received their direct stimulus payments yet.
 - The Department of Labor has failed to track the number of people who are still waiting for their unemployment claims.
 - Small businesses have been forced to wait an average of 41 days for emergency loans.
 - The Department of Treasury and the Fed have failed for nearly four months to fully implement the Main Street Lending program.
 - The Department of Labor has weakened paid leave protections passed by Congress, so fewer workers can stay home if they contract the virus or need to care for a family member.
- Trump is blocking critical aid, risking an economic depression. Trump and the Republican Senate are blocking the Heroes Act, which provides funds for state and local governments to pay frontline workers; money for testing, tracing and treatment; a second round of direct payments to families; new payroll protections to help 60 million workers; and critical resources for schools. Without this aid, the economy could face imminent disaster as state and local governments are forced to lay off essential workers, Americans run out of money for rent and food and small businesses are forced to close.

The New York Times
 VOL. CLXIX · No. 58,771 · FRIDAY, JULY 31, 2020

VIRUS WIPES OUT 5 YEARS OF ECONOMIC GROWTH

Second-Quarter Contraction Sets a Grim Record

Crises Abound, Yet Trump Chooses to Attack Election

Skilled Rebound in U.S. Makes Outlook Bleak for Coming Months

The article includes a bar chart showing quarterly economic growth from 2007 to 2020. The chart shows a sharp decline in 2020, reaching a low of -3.5% in the second quarter, which is the lowest point since the Great Depression. The chart also shows a significant recovery in 2020, with growth of 3.5% in the third quarter and 3.3% in the fourth quarter.

President Trump Failed to Provide the American People the Truth, Fired Watchdogs, Sidelined Experts, Misled the Public and Obstructed Congressional Oversight

- Trump misled the American people, risking lives. Trump relentlessly downplayed the coronavirus, calling it a hoax. He refused to promote the wide use of face masks, repeatedly suppressed or altered Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidance and continues to promote false and misleading information, such as the use of hydroxychloroquine – or even bleach – as therapeutics, even though our nation’s top scientists have refuted these claims.
- Trump fired federal watchdogs. Trump fired the chairman of the Pandemic Response Accountability Committee, created by Congress to oversee the federal coronavirus response. Trump also terminated inspectors general at key agencies and is now trying to replace the Inspector General at the Department of Health and Human Services.
- Trump removed or sidelined experts who disagreed with him. Trump removed the lead public health official developing medical countermeasures to fight the virus from his post as director of BARDA because he refused to accept the President’s dangerous pseudoscience, including the promotion of hydroxychloroquine. Trump’s top aides have continued to publicly attack Dr. Anthony Fauci, the nation’s top infectious disease expert, for warning the public about the seriousness of the crisis.
- Trump politicized health data. Trump abruptly shifted the reporting of critical hospital data that previously went to the CDC to a portal managed by a private contractor – without even bothering to consult with CDC first – bringing into question the accuracy of the data and transparency for the American people.
- Trump blocked aides from testifying. Trump refused to let top aides, including Coronavirus Response Coordinator Dr. Deborah Birx, testify before Congress.