Dear Sir:

I want to voice my specific and urgent objections to any new proposed regulations regarding mandatory drug testing. The inability to urinate in the presence of a witness does not equate to a refusal to do so. It is simply that - an inability. In this day and age, there are any number of ways to gain information about what a person has or has not in his/her system. The fact that we continue to rely on this barbaric and intimidating practice does not say much for us as a civilized society.

Thank you for your consideration,
