We appreciate your interest in CORE.GOV, which was launched in March 2004.

We currently have a growing number of mature, ready-to-use components. These mature components are listed separately.

In addition to the mature components, numerous component projects have been started and a number of agencies are planning to put components up on CORE.

Over time, CORE.GOV will become a networked community of component developers and reusers, and will offer numerous components of various types and complexities, including business components, e-forms and technical components. Using the CollabNet SourceCast tool, CORE.GOV's robust collaborative environment can organize and map components in a variety of ways to make them easy to identify, discuss and develop.

Please check this index in the coming weeks and months for the latest information regarding components and component projects.

If you are interested in a component or project listed here and would like to learn know more about it or join a project, please e-mail the contact person listed.

Thank you.

FRPP1166XML.CORE.GOV	FRPP 1166 XML Schema FRPP (Federal Real Property Profile) application holds the Federal Real Property data. Various agencies are required to report the data to GSA on a yearly basis. This submission of data was carried out by the 1166 fixed format which is an ASCII file with the position of the data determining the field element. We have come up with an XML Schema that captures the data in a format that is easy to correct and debug.	Mir Ali mali@core.gov
