

Find the Source

The reliable source

You can get reliable information on immunization, individual vaccines, and the diseases they prevent from many Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) sources. We provide a wealth of information that you can access in a number of convenient ways. The following is an introductory guide for anyone—health care professional or consumers—seeking trustworthy scientific information on immunization.

Find the right source for your information needs

TELEPHONE

CDC National Immunization Information Hot Line
 English: 800-232-2522
 Español: 800-232-0233
 (Answers questions and directs callers to all other sources.)

INTERNET

CDC National Immunization Program (NIP)
www.cdc.gov/nip/
 Immunization News Reports
 Immunization Publications
 Vaccine Safety Information
 Immunization Registry News
 Satellite Broadcast Schedule
 Professional Education Courses
 Additional Resources

CDC Travelers' Health Website
www.cdc.gov/travel/

E-MAIL

nipinfo@cdc.gov
 (Answers questions, responds to requests for publications, and directs inquirers to other resources.)

FAX ON DEMAND

Immunization Resource Request List
 1-888-232-3299
 CDC Fax Back (International Travel)
 1-877-394-8747

SAFER • HEALTHIER • PEOPLE™

CDC'S MOST POPULAR IMMUNIZATION RESOURCES

For Health Care Providers

- Childhood, Adolescent, and Adult Immunization Schedules
Provide the most current immunization schedules for the complete complement of recommended vaccines for each age group.
- Vaccine Information Statements
Provide information for consumers on individual vaccines and are required, by law, to be given to patients prior to vaccination.
- Epidemiology and Prevention of Vaccine-Preventable Diseases (The Pink Book)
Presents a comprehensive discussion of vaccine-preventable diseases and immunization in text book format.
- Guide to Contraindications to Childhood Vaccinations
Provides an excellent reference for contraindications and recommended actions for each of the vaccines in the pre-adolescent schedule.
- Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) Statements
Present recommendations from a committee of experts selected by the secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) to provide advice and guidance on vaccine-preventable diseases.
- Training and Education Materials
Provide CME/CNE-approved videotapes of immunization satellite programs, self-study products, on-site courses, and Web-based courses.

For the General Public

- Childhood, Adolescent, and Adult Immunization Schedules
Provide easy-reference charts showing which vaccines are recommended for children and for adults.
- Parents' Guide to Childhood Immunizations
Provides information on immunization and the diseases the vaccines prevent.
- Immunization of Adults
Provides information on diseases adult vaccines can prevent, tells which adults should and should not be vaccinated, and outlines vaccine safety issues.
- Travelers' Health Information
Provides the latest news on international disease outbreaks and vaccine advisements for specific geographic areas.
- Guidelines for Vaccinating Pregnant Women
Provides information in English and Spanish on which vaccines can and should be given during pregnancy.
- Protect Your Baby with Hep-B Shots
Provides information on hepatitis B, including the symptoms, how it is contracted, pregnancy issues, and vaccine protection.

To order or take advantage of these and many more immunization resources, call the CDC National Immunization Information Hot Line or check the CDC immunization website listed on the reverse side.