

There are more than 520 national wildlife refuges across the United States, so chances are there's one near you.

Although teeming with all kinds of wildlife, America's National Wildlife Refuge System is great habitat for people, too.

If you visit a wildlife refuge during National Wildlife Refuge Week, you can enjoy special events like birding tours, fishing and hunting events, nature hikes, and educational activities for children.

National wildlife refuges offer outstanding opportunities to enjoy wildlife and the wonders of the outdoors all year long.

For more information on your National Wildlife Refuge System, call 1-800-344-WILD. For information on Refuge Week events, visit refuges.fws.gov and click on "special events."
