Introduction

This brochure is for you if you are covered by the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) and are:

- 1) an employee who is thinking of retiring and later returning to Federal employment, or
- 2) an annuitant who wants to know what would happen to your annuity if you return to work as a Federal employee.

It has important information about how reemployment will affect your status as an annuitant, whether you will continue to receive annuity during and after the period of reemployment, and what future retirement benefits may be payable to you on the basis of reemployment.

FERS Basic Benefit

Annuity Stops

Reemployment will cause your annuity to stop if —

- (1) You are a disability annuitant whom the U.S. Office of Personnel Management has found recovered or restored to earning capacity prior to reemployment; or
- (2) You are a disability annuitant who was not disabled for your National Guard Technician position but were awarded disability annuity because you were medically disqualified for continued membership in the National Guard.

Future Benefits

When your annuity stops, you have the same status as any other Federal employee employed in an equivalent position with a similar service history. When you again leave Federal service you will be entitled to either an immediate or deferred annuity based on this new separation. Generally, the annuity will be computed on the basis of your service and salary history at the time of the future separation from Federal service.

Annuity Continues

If your annuity does not stop under the provisions discussed above, then you will continue to receive it while you are working. Your pay will be reduced by the amount of annuity paid for the period you worked. If you do not work full time, the reduction in pay will be adjusted proportionately. However, some pay is not subject to this reduction for annuity. Pay is not reduced for annuity for a period during which you have elected to receive injury compensation benefits in lieu of annuity, or when you receive a lump-sum payment of annual leave on separation. Unless your reemployment is on an intermittent basis, retirement deductions will be withheld from your pay. The retirement deductions are a percentage of your basic pay, before it is reduced for annuity.

Supplemental and Redetermined Benefits

Reemployment may increase your retirement and death benefits. As a reemployed annuitant, you can earn either a supplemental annuity or a redetermined annuity. A supplemental annuity is an annuity that is added on to your present annuity. A redetermined annuity is a recomputed annuity that takes the place of your present annuity. If you work as a reemployed annuitant on a full time, continuous basis for at least 1 year, you may be entitled to a supplemental annuity. If you work part-time, you must work a proportionately longer period to earn a supplemental annuity. If your reemployment continues for at least 5 years, or the part-time equivalent, you may elect a redetermined annuity. Intermittent service cannot be counted in establishing eligibility for a supplemental or redetermined annuity, and cannot be used in the computation of a supplemental annuity. If you die while reemployed, after establishing eligibility for either a supplemental or redetermined annuity, your surviving spouse may have his or her survivor benefit either increased or recomputed.

Disability Annuitants

The following are important facts that may affect your future retirement benefits if you are a disability annuitant.

- (1) If you are reemployed on a permanent basis in a position equivalent in grade and pay to the position from which you retired, the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) may find that you have recovered from your disability.
- (2) If you are reemployed subject to medical and physical qualification standards equivalent to those of the position from which you retired, OPM may find that you have recovered from your disability.
- (3) The pay of the position in which you are reemployed, prior to the offset of annuity, will be included as earnings in determining whether the disability annuity will stop due to restoration to earning capacity.

- (4) Receipt of, or continued entitlement to receive, full or partial injury compensation benefits from the Department of Labor's Office of Workers' Compensation during reemployment, when those benefits are based on the same injury or medical condition that is the basis for OPM's award of disability retirement, is conclusive evidence (unless there is contravening medical evidence) that you have not recovered from your disability.
- (5) If you are age 60 or over, your annuity cannot be stopped because of your earnings, and OPM can find that you are recovered only if you request to be found recovered.

Exceptions

Not all of the above rules apply to all reemployed annuitants. You should ask your employing agency for information about other rules that may apply to you if you are reemployed —

- (1) Under special provisions for positions for which there is exceptional difficulty in recruiting or retaining a qualified employee, or there is a direct threat to life or property, or other unusual circumstances warranting emergency employment;
- (2) On an interim basis, as a consequence of an administrative or judicial body reviewing the grounds for your separation; or
- (3) Under another retirement system for Federal employees.

Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) Program

Annuity Stops

If your annuity stops upon reemployment, your health insurance coverage as an annuitant stops, too. If your appointment is one that gives you eligibility for FEHB coverage, you can enroll in the program when you are reemployed.

Annuity Continues

If your annuity continues after you are reemployed, your FEHB coverage as an annuitant continues and withholding of premiums continues to be made from your annuity payment.

Federal Employees Group Life Insurance (FEGLI) ProgramAnnuity Stops

If your annuity stops upon reemployment, your life insurance as an annuitant stops without a right to convert to an individual policy. You acquire life insurance coverage as an employee under the same conditions as any other employee who is rehired in the Federal service. For details, read the publication RI 76-21, Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance, which describes the FEGLI Program.

Annuity ContinuesContinuing the Coverage You Have Had as an Annuitant

If your annuity continues after you are reemployed, you retain the life insurance you have as a retiree. However, if the type of appointment you have makes you eligible for FEGLI coverage as an employee, any Basic Life insurance, Standard Optional, and Family Optional insurance you have as an annuitant are suspended and you will have the coverage(s) (including Accidental Death and Dismemberment coverage where applicable) as an employee. The value of this insurance will be based on your salary as an employee, and the cost will be withheld from your pay. This happens automatically. These coverages will be resumed at the same rate when the reemployment ends, except for any applicable reductions that normally begin at age 65.

The cost of Additional Optional insurance, if you have it, will continue to be withheld from your annuity payment unless you request that it also be suspended so that you can have Additional Optional insurance as an employee. If you choose to have Additional Optional insurance as an employee, you will be subject to the same conditions as other employees who are rehired. Ask your employing office for the publication RI 76-21, the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance booklet, which describes the FEGLI program.

Electing Insurance as an Employee

During your reemployment you will automatically get Basic Life Insurance as an employee if the type of appointment you have makes you eligible for coverage. You may also elect any optional coverage unless an uncanceled waiver is still in effect.

If You Die While Employed

If you die during the period of reemployment, your survivor will receive either the amount of Basic Life insurance you had as an employee or the amount of the suspended Basic Life you had as an annuitant, whichever is higher. If you have Standard Optional insurance, the amount you have as an employee is the amount payable if you die as a reemployed annuitant. If you have Additional Optional insurance as an employee rather than as an annuitant, the amount you have as an employee is the amount payable if you die as a reemployed annuitant. If you have Additional Optional as an annuitant, that is the amount payable.

Note: If you retire and are reemployed under a temporary appointment without a break in service or a break in service of 3 days or less, you are eligible for FEGLI coverage as an employee. If the break in service before the temporary appointment begins is more than 3 days, you are not generally eligible for FEGLI coverage as an employee.

Caution: Any waiver or declination of insurance you file as a reemployed annuitant will affect your suspended life insurance as an annuitant as well as the coverage you have as an employee.

After You Leave

When you leave the reemployment, you can keep insurance you acquired because of the reemployment if:

- You qualify for a supplemental annuity or you acquire a new annuity right and

- You have had the insurance (or number of multiples, in the case of Additional Optional insurance) as an employee (including the time as a reemployed annuitant) for at least the 5 years of service immediately preceding your separation from the reemployment (or for all periods of service during which you were eligible for the insurance, if less than 5 years).

If you keep insurance you acquired during the reemployment, the suspended insurance of the same type terminates.

Special Note for Individuals Who Retired On or After March 30, 1994, and Who Received a Voluntary Separation Incentive

Generally, any employee who received a voluntary separation incentive payment from a Federal agency since March 30, 1994, must repay the entire amount of the incentive to the agency that paid it if the individual is employed by the Government of the United States or if the individual works under a personal services contract with the Government within 5 years of the date of separating for the incentive. Employment includes work with any entity of the Federal government, under any appointment authority, for any duration of time. This includes all branches of Government, independent agencies (such as the U.S. Postal Service), all work schedules (part-time, temporary, term appointments, etc.), experts, consultants, etc. In some extremely rare cases, an agency may request a waiver of the repayment, but generally there are no exceptions to the repayment requirement.

Because there are several different laws authorizing the payment of VSIPs, and since many of these laws contain different repayment requirements, if you separated on or after March 30, 1994, received a separation incentive, and are considering returning to work with any part of the Federal government or as a personal services contractor, contact your agency for information about the effect of reemployment on the payment you received.
