

Greetings,

9-3

I am writing to you today to voice my concern about proposals to modify the meaning of "Made in the

USA

I believe the rules that are in place now, should be left as they are. If you dilute the meaning of "Made in the U.S.A." by allowing less domestic content, you will be committing a fraud on the American people. Many people look for the "Made in the U.S.A." label. They understand what it means to purchase these items. They know the jobs and the communities where these people work are strengthened by their purchasing of these products.

Please don't let the foreign governments and big companies dilute the truth behind the "Made in the U.S.A." concept. Please protect the symbol and its meaning.

Sincerely,
Michael Hawkins
