

I think this proposal is a great one.... but I have an additional idea.

Not only should the item be labeled as pornographic, but it should go one step further. If a porn e-mail is sent to someone, it should require a response from the person who received the e-mail making it okay to send porn e-mail to that address.... and if the sender does NOT get a response.... the porn e-mail sender is required to take that e-mail address off there spamming list.
