The Prosecutors Memorial

On September 20, 2004, a new monument was dedicated at the National Advocacy Center in memory of fallen state and federal prosecutors. A ceremony was held honoring each of the seven prosecutors, with members of their families in attendance.

Mr. Paul F. Walsh, Jr., President of the National District Attorneys Association, gave a moving speech before the unveiling of the monument.

The memorial stands in the center of the NAC courtyard and is represented by the scales of justice, with each fallen prosecutor's name engraved in granite at its base.

The monument will serve as a reminder of the commitment and sacrifice made by each fallen prosecutor to protect the citizens of the United States through the pursuit of justice.

The names of the following prosecutors are engraved on the memorial: Eugene C. Berry, Victor C. Breen, R. Fred Capps, Floyd G. Hoard, C. Chris Marshall, Paul R. McLaughlin, and Michael C. Messer.

State Fair Back in Town!

Columbians know that fall has arrived when the South Carolina State Fair comes back to town. It is two weeks full of Ferris wheel rides, funnel cakes, and games.

The South Carolina State Fair's history dates back to the early 1840's when the first Agriculture and Mechanical Society of South Carolina was formed. This organization is responsible for the establishment of the State Fair. Today, this organization maintains complete control and donates much of the proceeds from ticket sales to charitable organizations in the community.

The State Fairgrounds are located at 1200 Rosewood Drive, approximately two miles from the NAC. The fair is open October 7-17 and admission is $7.00.

Shakespeare In The Park

This year, the South Carolina Shakespeare Company brings a well-known classic to Finlay Park. For ten nights in October, the great tragedy of Macbeth comes alive.

Macbeth is considered the darkest of the four Shakespearean tragedies revealing themes of good vs. evil, power and knowledge, and destruction. Perhaps the most memorable character is Lady Macbeth who also becomes overwhelmed with ambition for power, leading her down a self-destructive path to madness and witchcraft.

The South Carolina Shakespeare Company has dozens of talented actors and actresses, who have been performing in and around the Columbia area for many years. Many of the Company members have performed or studied at prestigious arenas, such as the former Folger Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, DC, and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London. The majority of these actors and actresses are from South Carolina and have decided to stay in their home state, rather than seek more traditional performing venues.

Macbeth will begin Thursday, October 14, and continue nightly through October 30. Admission is $10.00 and tickets can be purchased at the gate. It is also suggested to take a blanket, since it is an outdoor amphitheatre.

Please contact the Concierge for more information or to purchase tickets.

USC—So Many Choices

Need an espresso? Want a vitamin enriched smoothie after that workout at the gym? Craving ice cream on a warm evening?

Well, look no further! Campus dining at USC offers solutions to all these desires and more. Located within a short walking distance from the NAC, one can satisfy almost any craving.

New to USC this fall is Marble Slab Ice Cream. With hand rolled waffle cones to fresh fruit and candies to mix in, the ice cream experience doesn't get any better than this!

Zia Juice Bar is located in the Russell House Student Union on the first floor. Zia offers an expansive menu of refreshing smoothies. Add proteins, supplements or fat burners for an added benefit. It is perfect for the walk back to the NAC after a hard workout at the Strom Thurmond Health and Wellness Center!

Directly next door to the Advocacy Center in the Business Administration building is Jazzman's Café. They offer freshly brewed coffees, espressos, pastries and more.

USC has many other dining facilities that are close, healthy, and enjoyable. See the Front Desk or Concierge for more USC dining options.

Frightening Tales of Columbia

Halloween is creeping up this month, and Columbia has its fair share of ghostly stories to chill your bones.

The University's Longstreet Theatre was used as a hospital during the tumultuous Civil War, and is now thought to be haunted by restless spirits. The Green Room, which is located in the basement of the theatre, was once used as a morgue and stories of cold drafts, the feeling of being watched, and unexplained noises have been told by students and teachers.

Fort Jackson's artillery range and B Camp 39th AG Barrack are said to be haunted by former soldiers and officers.

Columbia is also home to the Congaree River Bridge. This bridge passes over the Conga-ree River and is home to the wandering spirit of a young girl asking for a ride home. If she is picked up, she will strangely disappear before making it across the bridge.

These stories are sure to get anyone in the Halloween mood! Just beware—you never know when you might see a ghost on the campus of USC!

USC School of Music Performs

The University of South Carolina's music program is one of the best in the nation and offers almost 250 concerts each year. In the month of October, there are eight student and faculty recitals, as well as one performance by the USC Symphony.

The School of Music offers twenty degree programs in virtually every band and orchestra instrument, and also voice, opera, conducting, and music theory. The USC String Project was hailed as one of the best in the nation by the New York Times, stating that it is a "significant success," in an article that described the String Project as the model program for the National String Project Consortium.

The USC Symphony is delighted to have Bella Hristova perform "Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto," Thursday, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. The performance is $18.00 and will be held at the Koger Center for the Arts.

The School of Music also has free concerts and recitals throughout the week featuring the students, undergraduate and graduate, and faculty of the music school. Please check with the Concierge for details of each performance on your next trip to the NAC.

Columbia Inferno Heats Up the Ice

It's that time of year again when it starts to get cool outside, and hot inside the Carolina Coliseum. The Columbia Inferno Hockey Team will blaze across the ice for their fourth season in the Capital City, beginning October 15 with a pre-season match against the Pee Dee Pride.

The regular season opens the following weekend in Columbia with the Inferno facing an in-state rival, the South Carolina Stingrays from Charleston. The Inferno have been a wonderful addition to this sports-loving city and have been very successful in each of their seasons. In only their second season, the Inferno advanced to the final round of the Patrick J. Kelly cup.

The Columbia Inferno play at the Carolina Coliseum, located approximately eight blocks from the NAC and is easily accessible by the trolley.

Tickets range in price from $13.00-$18.00 and can be purchased at the gate.

Women's Volleyball Takes the Court

USC women's volleyball team will hit the court this month battling SEC rivals, Kentucky, Georgia and Florida. The Lady Gamecocks had a tough season last year but hope to rebound and come out on top this year.

After a season of 12-18, many of the veteran players returned in the off-season to condition and prepare for the intense demands of practice this fall. The women have endured one week of two-a-day practices, which have been mentally and physically demanding.

This season, the Lady Gamecocks will host some of the best college volleyball teams in the nation, including the defending national champion Southern California and top twenty-five teams including Notre Dame and Michigan State.

It will be a tough and challenging year for the young volleyball team, but they are ready to win!

USC Volleyball is played at the Volleyball Competition Center located on the corner of Assembly and Blossom Streets, next to the Carolina Coliseum. Tickets are $5.00 and can be purchased at the door.

For a nice relaxing evening, make a plan to visit the USC School of Music for a free concert.

THE FOUR CORNERS OF LAW

Charleston, SC

The intersection of Broad and Meeting Streets in Historic Charleston is known as the Four Corners of Law, representing the religious and governmental laws ruling over the square and the city. St. Michael's Church, City Hall, and the County and Federal Courthouses all adorn these corners.

A beautiful painting representing this area of Charleston was donated to the National Advocacy Center and hangs at the end of the Dining Room hallway on the first floor.

NAC Recipe

Stuffed Turkey Breast

Ingredients:

Approx. 5 lb Raw, Ground Turkey Meat
1 1/2 lb. Ground Pork Fat
4 Beaten Eggs
3 Cups Heavy Cream
Poultry Seasoning—to taste
Salt—to taste
Pepper—to taste
Turkey Skin—as needed
Stuffing

To Prepare:

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Puree turkey meat and pork fat with salt in vertical cutter mixer, keeping very cold.
3. Add the eggs and heavy cream slowly, until fully absorbed.
4. Sprinkle the mixture with seasonings, spread onto plastic wrap about 10x8x1/2-in. thick.
5. Spread the stuffing on top of the mixture.
6. Roll up the stuffing and turkey mixture in a jelly-roll fashion.
7. Use turkey skin to wrap and tie the roll as you would a roast.
8. Roast on rack at 350°F until internal temperature of 160°F is reached.
9. Let rest 20 minutes before carving.
