PALM, INC. REPORT

Regarding
FTC Order dated April 17, 2002

In accordance with Paragraph VIII of the above described Order, Palm, Inc. submits the following report detailing the manner and form of Palm's compliance.

Steps Taken To Comply With Paragraphs I, II, and III Of The Order

Paragraphs I, II and III of the Order contain obligations on the part of Palm which require similar compliance actions. Therefore, the following response encompasses Palm's actions in response to all three Paragraphs. Palm's actions fall into two main categories: Training and Review.

Training:

- Employees and contractors responsible for creating marketing and promotional materials received a 90-minute in-depth training session during which they received information on the requirements of the Order and how to comply. Examples drawn from the Commission's Complaint were used as well as other examples of how to properly convey information. Well over 100 people attended this training including employees from marketing, marketing communications, public relations, product marketing and sales.

    - Training covered

        - Provisions of the consent decree and issues of concern to the FTC
        - Examples from FTC complaint
        - Detailed discussion of claims, consumer perceptions, disclaimers, and substantiation
          Discussions regarding disciplines other than those creating promotional materials but which directly relate to substantiation
        - Interactive review of materials from Palm and others to identify potential issues and necessary revisions
        - Detailed walkthrough of the required process for the creation, approval, substantiation and archiving of promotional materials

    It is important to note that these sessions were interactive -- these employees had, and took advantage of, the opportunity to pose questions to Palm Legal and Marketing Staff in order to understand fully their obligations under Order.

- In conjunction with the obligation to deliver the Order to designated employees and contractors, Palm provided a presentation summarizing the issues and how to deal with them going forward to the employees who acknowledged receipt of the Order pursuant to Paragraph VI.
- Palm conducted a series of 30 minute sessions for all the staff functions explaining the Order and the methods of compliance. Such sessions would include the various vice-presidents of the different functions (e.g. engineering, supply, operations) as well as their managers. Every function had at least one such session, some having several.
- Vendors responsible for creating or supporting the distribution of promotional materials were also trained
  - Advertising and PR agencies
  - In store and demonstration vendors
  - Collateral and tech writing teams
- Key managers including the Senior VP of Marketing (Ken Wirt) and the Senior VP of Sales (Glenn Cross) sent memos to their respective organizations (many of which also attended the training sessions) delivering the Order and stressing the need to comply.
- An email was sent to all Palm managers worldwide delivering the Order and the summary presentation regarding compliance.

Review

Even prior to the Order, Palm implemented a process that required review of all promotional materials prior to their release. Palm has implemented, and expanded upon, that mechanism to enhance proper compliance with the Order. Indeed, as a result of the negotiations with Staff, Palm had learned the Commission's essential concerns with Palm's materials and endeavored to satisfy these concerns well before the Order became final. Relevant employees and contractors working with promotional materials were advised of the requirements and materials were regularly reviewed with the requirements in mind. Going forward, to further enable compliance, Palm has expanded the existing process to establish a system that identifies and analyzes claims for a product during the proposed product's development phase. Claims intended to be made about the product are to be identified and reviewed for accuracy.

Review Process

- As noted above and delineated more fully below, Palm has instituted a more rigorous process to address compliance with the Order.
- Reviews are conducted at several stages during the creation of the promotional materials
  - Initiation of project
  - Material creation
  - Final review and archiving
- Project initiation

  - For each relevant product, Palm creates a communication brief which highlights the expected features and accompanying claims
  - Personnel are assigned to verify each claim either through engineering supply chain or otherwise
  - Claims, which might require further clarification, are identified and necessary clarifying statements or supporting text are crafted.
    Final copy is reviewed for compliance and substantiation.
  - Approved text for the product, with necessary support, is posted to public folder for marketing teams to refer to when creating materials.

- Material creation
  - Each marketing piece draws upon subsets of the approved text
  - Any new claims are identified and verification is initiated
  - Supporting text is created, where necessary
  - Supporting text and substantiation travel with the project job jacket for final review and archiving

- Material completion
  - Since each marketing piece is unique, the final product is reviewed
    - Confirm that approved text is used
    - New claims are substantiated and supporting text used
  - Project proceeds to legal review
  - Final product is archived
    - Nomenclature system aligns the promotional piece with specific Palm product (as well as date)

Accompanying this report are copies of promotional items currently in use by Palm, except those exempted by Paragraph IV. Attached as Exhibit A is an index of the materials provided.

Steps Taken To Comply With Paragraph V Of The Order

Paragraph V requires Palm to archive promotional materials, substantiation materials and any contradictory materials related to covered representations. Palm's process to comply with this provision is described above. The files are maintained in the office of the Vice President, Consumer Marketing.

Steps Taken To Comply With Paragraph VI Of The Order

Paragraph VI requires Palm to provide the Order to identified employees and secure their acknowledgement of receipt. Palm complied with this obligation by (1) sending an email to all affected employees attaching a copy of the Order; (2) posting the Order and a presentation explaining the background and requirements going forward on a Palm Intranet site; (3) requiring all affected employees to log onto the site, review the presentation and the Order and acknowledge receipt electronically.

PALM, INC. REPORT

In an effort to secure compliance with the Order, Palm asked more employees to review and acknowledge the Order than were obligated to do so under the Order. As stated above, all Palm managers received two emails containing the Order and pointing them to the Intranet site for more information. Palm felt it important to broadly communicate the information so as to further compliance efforts. In all, over 300 employees acknowledged receipt and review of the Order. Many more received it as a result of Palm's email efforts described above.

In addition, contractors associated with marketing and public relations were required to attend training and acknowledge receipt of the Order.

Palm's Board of Directors received the Order electronically and all signed paper acknowledgement of receipt of the Order.

Going forward, Palm's Human Resources department has included the Order and an acknowledgement as part of the "sign in" process for all new employees.

Attached as Exhibit B is a list of those employees acknowledging the Order as well as Palm's Board of Directors. Palm requests Exhibit B be treated as Confidential as it lists employees and positions, which could easily enable a competitor to target Palm employees. Such an assault on Palm's employee base is likely to cause substantial competitive harm to Palm, especially in the current intensely competitive high tech environment. To ease consideration of this request attached as Exhibit C is a non-confidential list showing the job titles and dates of acknowledgement.

Paragraph VII requires Palm to notify the Commission in anticipation of certain described events. Since all events described require involvement of Palm's Legal Department, all members of which received and signed the acknowledgement, it is anticipated that appropriate notice will occur.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed this 24th day of June, 2002 in Sama Clara, Santa Clara County, California.

Palm™ Portabl

Go wireless with the Palm™ i705 handheld. The Palm i705 handheld combines secure, integrated wireless connectivity—email and Web access with no external modem*—with all the classic organizer features you expect from Palm. All in one easy-to-use, slim package. The Palm i705 handheld's performance will put you on top of your world, and with built-in dual expansion, you'll stay at the top, even as your needs grow. (Palm.Net® account required, sold separately.)

Secure, Always-On Email

Automatic access to email and the Internet at your fingertips.

The Palm™ i705 handheld is ready to connect you to the power of the Internet and the convenience of email while on the go. Send and automatically receive your corporate and personal email using Microsoft Exchange/Outlook or communicate with co-workers and friends with AOL Instant Messenger. Choose how you'll be notified of incoming messages so you can work more efficiently while you're on the go. You can also find the information you need through the MyPalm™ Portal, your one-stop wireless connection to news, criteria-smart and over 500 other wireless-ready websites. Browse the Web, communicate with friends, family and associates, and get all the information you want. (Some email and internet access software included with handheld. Palm.Net account required, sold separately). Plus, the Palm i705 handheld offers the end-to-end security and data management that IT departments require to support handhelds in mobile enterprise applications.

expandable and connectable.

Inherit all the great features.
Our newest handheld sports the coveted expansion slot previously found only in the m500 family, plus the sleek design and fun faceplates of the m100 series.

Double your expansion options.
Add content or extra memory via the expansion card slot. Or, snap a wireless modem, GPS receiver or digital camera to the Universal Connector at the bottom.

Suit yourself.
Personalize your handheld by entering your addresses, appointments, and to-dos. Then, browse Software Connection and add what you want. Arcade games, eBooks, financial calculators. Choose from thousands of applications, many are free!

Put MultiMediaCard and Secure Digital expansion cards into it. And get more out of it.

Free software.
Use the bonus software included in the box to view and edit Word and Excel files on your handheld*, read eBooks, view video clips and photos and browse web content offline.

Go wireless.
Use the included Mobile Connectivity Software with a modem or data-enabled mobile phone to access your favorite websites, send and receive short messages, and check your email wirelessly.

Stay in sync with USB.
A USB HotSync® cradle and software for both Mac and PC let you

Palm's Software Connection

m105

Simple, connected and fun.

Lots of storage capacity.
All the cool features of the Palm™ m100 handheld, plus 8MB of memory, the Mobile Internet Kit, and a HotSync® cradle for fast and easy backup.

Web and email friendly.
The included Mobile Internet Kit makes it easy to stay in touch. Send and receive email wirelessly or tap into your favorite websites using your compatible modem or cell phone* when you're on the go.

Totally customizable.
Change the color of your handheld with an assortment of snap-on faceplates. Plus, add on any of the thousands of software applications available, from business productivity tools to games. Many are free.

Keeps your data safe.
Backup all your important data onto your desktop with the touch of a button using the included HotSync® cradle.

At-a-glance timekeeping.
Conveniently-positioned clock doubles as a travel alarm to get you up on time.

* Requires either a Palm OS-compatible modem or a mobile phone with a built-in modem or data capability and an infrared or cable port for connection to the handheld.
