I have a small computer business that specializes in data protection. One of the big problems I have is teaching clients to protect their computers and their businesses from spyware. The software is a distraction, clutters the computer, degrades performance, and ultimately costs them time and money to clean up their systems, educate them on how to keep the computer clean and diverts focus away from their businesses. Whatever you can do to reduce the prevalence of spyware and its adverse effects would be greatly appreciated!
