I have been working on computers since 1998 and simply love my computer and the internet but it is a constant struggle to keep it clean of adware and spyware. You don't have click on anything or do anything to get some of it and it is so hard to detect and remove. Gator is the worse. And Orbit, that's running a close second in my book. I update and download software to protect my computer. I run scans and clean and really work at keeping it off. But every once in a while, one will slip through. This sort of thing might be easier for the geeks and computer experts but I am just your average home computer user. It isn't fair that I have to always be on the alert for things like this. They are invading my computer without permission and should be stopped. Please put an end to adware and spyware.
Thank you.
