To Whom it may Concern:

My computer is under constant attack by spyware and adware companies. I use my computer to help me do my job and it really slows down productivity. I understand the pop-ups and they are annoying. I would never buy anything they offer even to save my own life just because I don't like the intrusive way of advertising. The ones that I really hate and think need to be stopped are the ones that alter my computer without my permission. They are denying me the right to conduct searches for real information and services by forcing my computer to look at their clients only. This should be illegal and they should be made to pay for all the damage they are causing people. The internet is a great tool but it is being ruined by these greedy people.
