

Ehouserrn

Tue 5/18/2004 1:24 PM

Hello,

It is illogical to attempt to defend an aggressive form of advertising/ information gathering that can actually cause harm (via computer crashes and resulting cost/ aggravation) to the consumer. Any company found participating in such activity should be held up for public criticism, be forced to pay for any form of damages caused by their spyware and then be vigorously sued.

Sincerely

Edward P. Houser