

Jan Straeter

Tue 5/18/2004 11:37 PM

I accept that my behavior on the Internet will be tracked, IF I CHOOSE TO ALLOW IT. I don't accept behavior as Gator, doubleclick and some other major AD-companies uses.

1. I own my computer and have purchased it for my own money. I get nothing in return that benefits me from the AD-companies.. These AD-companies does NOT have the right to put anything onto my system without my explicit allowance to do so.

I don't accept to have to opt out from something I never opted in for (DoubleClick.net)

I don't accept Gators behavior (My old PC (Intel233MMX) will be doing nothing else than running the spyware and becomes totally useless.

Placing programs onto anyones system without the explicit allowance is intrusion/violating that system owners personal integrity..

MKR

Jan Straeter