DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Rural Utilities Service

7 CFR Part 1744

RIN 0572-AB48

Post-Loan Policies and Procedures Common to Guaranteed and Insured Loans

AGENCY: Rural Utilities Service, USDA.

ACTION: Final rule.

SUMMARY: Recent changes in the telecommunications industry, including deregulation and technological developments, have caused Rural Utilities Service (RUS) borrowers and other organizations providing telecommunications services to consider undertaking projects that provide new telecommunications services and other telecommunications services not ordinarily financed by RUS. To facilitate the financing of those projects and services, RUS is willing to consider accommodating the Government's lien on telecommunications borrowers' systems in an expedited manner based on the financial strength of the borrowers operations. This will help enable RUS telecommunications providers to compete in an expanding number of telecommunications services may be critical to their financial strength and stability.

EFFECTIVE DATE: This rule is effective August 9, 2001.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Jonathan P. Claffey, Deputy Assistant Administrator, Telecommunications Program, Rural Utilities Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW., STOP 1590, Room 4056, Washington, DC 20250-1590. Telephone number (202) 720-9556.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Executive Order 12866

This rule has been determined to be significant for purposes of Executive Order 12866 and therefore has been reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

Executive Order 12372

This rule is excluded from the scope of Executive Order 12372, Intergovernmental Consultation, which may require a consultation with State and local officials. See the final rule related notice entitled, "Department Programs and Activities Excluded from Executive Order 12372" (50 FR 47034).

Executive Order 12988

This rule has been reviewed under Executive Order 12988, Civil Justice Reform. RUS has determined that this rule meets the applicable standards provided in section 3 of the Executive Order. In addition, all State and local laws and regulations that are in conflict with this rule will be preempted, no retroactive effort will be given to this rule, and, in accordance with sec. 212(e) of the Department of Agriculture Reorganization Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. Sec. 6912(e)), administrative appeal procedures, if any, must be exhausted before an action against the Department or its agencies may be initiated.

Regulatory Flexibility Act Certification

RUS has determined that this rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, as defined in the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.). The RUS telecommunications program provides loans to borrowers at interest rates and on terms that are more favorable than those generally available from the private sector. RUS borrowers, as a result of obtaining federal financing, receive economic benefits that exceed any direct economic costs associated with complying with RUS regulations and requirements.

Information Collection and Recordkeeping Requirements

In accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. chapter 35), RUS invites comments on this information collection for which RUS intends to request approval from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). These requirements have been approved by emergency clearance under OMB Control Number 0572-0126.

Comments on this information collection must be received by October 9, 2001.

Comments are invited on (a) whether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information will have practical utility; (b) the accuracy of the agency's estimate of burden including the validity of the methodology and assumption used; (c) ways to enhance the quality, utility and clarity of the information to be collected; and (d) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on those who are to respond, including through the use of appropriate automated, electronic, mechanical, or other technological collection techniques or other forms of information technology.

Comments may be sent to F. Lamont Heppe, Jr., Director, Program Development and Regulatory Analysis, Rural Utilities Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, 1400 Independence Ave., SW., Stop 1522, Room 4034 South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1522.

National Environmental Policy Act Certification

The Administrator of RUS has determined that this rule will not significantly affect the quality of the human environment as defined by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.). Therefore, this action does not require an environmental impact statement or assessment.

Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance

The program described by this rule is listed in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance Programs under number 10.851, Rural Telephone Loans and Loan Guarantees; and number 10.852, Rural Telephone Bank Loans. This catalog is available on a subscription basis from the Superintendent of Documents, the United States Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402-9325.

Unfunded Mandates

This rule contains no Federal mandates (under the regulatory provisions of Title II of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995) for State, local, and tribal governments or the private sector. Thus, this rule is not subject to the requirements of section 202 and 205 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

Background

RUS is amending its regulations covering lien accommodations under certain circumstances where the borrower's financial strength is sufficient to protect security for the Government's loans and the lender seeking a lien accommodation.

Since the passage of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, which provides for a competitive, deregulated national telecommunications policy framework, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has been working to implement the provisions of the law. As those provisions begin to be integrated through the FCC's rulemaking process, the FCC is focusing on the types of telecommunications service that must be made available to all Americans; i.e. part of universal service, and the benefits to all Americans from advanced services for schools, libraries, and rural health care providers. The newly competitive environment will undoubtedly affect the rural telecommunications marketplace. For the industry as a whole—urban and rural—competition will offer the means for delivering the universal service concept envisioned by the Telecommunications Act of 1996. In the competitive marketplace of the future, investment in infrastructure will be lucrative in markets where local exchange carriers seek to attract high-usage, low-cost subscribers. Competition will be fierce and customers will be the winners as their demands for new and improved service at affordable rates will be met. Yet in rural and high-cost areas, where quality of service and advanced service offerings are just as important, there is less potential for investment based on competition. Investment will need to be encouraged in the form of incentives through the universal support mechanisms and the lending programs of RUS, as well as private sources of financing. RUS will continue its partnership with rural America to ensure that telecommunications providers will have the means to modernize their networks; however, industry deregulation and new technological developments have caused RUS borrowers and other organizations providing telecommunications services to consider undertaking projects that provide new telecommunications services and other telecommunications services not ordinarily financed by RUS. Although some of these services may not be eligible for financing under the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (RE Act), these services may nevertheless advance RE Act objectives where the borrower obtains financing from private lenders.

Due to the changing environment of the telecommunications industry, large or predominately non-rural local exchange carriers (LECs) are selling their more rural exchanges in order to concentrate on their more lucrative service areas. This "sell-off" provides an opportunity for rural LECs to expand their service territories. Typically, these acquired exchanges will need infrastructure improvements and the rural LECs will work hard to provide state-of-the-art service. This will require increased investment. RUS loans for infrastructure building can enable rural LECs to upgrade plant and service territories that may have been neglected for years. All subscribers, urban and rural, benefit from improvements to the national network. While opportunities exist for rural LECs to expand their markets and continue the tradition of providing the best possible service available to rural residents, uncertainties regarding future revenue streams and the availability of funds from universal service support may hamper some small LECs' investment decisions. The amendments to this regulation will help to facilitate funding from non-RUS sources in order to meet the growing capital needs of rural LECs. Depending on the purposes for which a lien accommodation is being sought, RUS will provide "automatic" approval for borrowers that meet the financial tests described in this rule. RUS believes that borrowers that are financially sound should be afforded more flexibility with regard to financial arrangements with outside lenders for the purpose of promoting rural telecommunications. The tests are designed to ensure that the financial strength of the borrower is more than sufficient to protect the government's loan security interests; hence, the lien accommodations will not adversely affect the government's financial interests.

In addition to providing for automatic lien accommodations, this amendment removes the requirement for borrowers seeking lien accommodations to comply with competitive bid procedures under 7 CFR part 1753. Further, RUS proposes to address other concerns involved in the accommodation of the Government's lien for those borrowers that do not qualify for an automatic lien accommodation in a subsequent revision to this subpart.

Comments

A proposed rule was published December 15, 1999, at 64 FR 69946.

During the comment period that ended February 14, 2000, RUS received comments from the following organizations:

- (1) Cooper, White & Cooper LLR, representing: National Rural Telecom Association Organization for the Protection and Advancement of Small Telecommunications Companies United States Telecom Association; and Western Rural Telephone Association
- (2) Rural Telephone Finance Cooperative; and
- (3) CoBank.

The comments and RUS' responses follow:

Comment summary. The respondents commented that RUS should utilize consolidated financial reports when determining a borrower's eligibility for an "automatic" lien accommodation under this rule, rather than unconsolidated borrower financial statements that reflect only the telecommunication company's or cooperative's financial condition.

RUS response. When dealing with the security of the government's loans, RUS must rely on the financial strength of the borrower and its ability to survive economically based on its "telecommunications service" operations. Basing financial tests on consolidated statements may distort the true health of the borrower's financial position with regards to its operations. In addition, the RUS mortgage does not provide a lien on assets not held by the borrower and therefore, RUS believes the best measure is to use unconsolidated statements.

Comment summary. The respondents request that RUS implement rule changes that would allow a borrower to effect the release of lien of the government's mortgage on after-acquired property upon a showing of sufficient financial strength to ensure that the government's security interest is adequate to protect the RUS loan.

RUS response. RUS disagrees with this position. RUS views each borrower as an 'on-going' project whereby the strength of its operations as a whole is needed to adequately secure the government's interests. Commercial operations are oftentimes cyclical and evidence of current financial strength is not an insurance of future financial performance.

Comment summary. The respondents requested that RUS clarify whether TIER and Debt Service were calculated on a before or after-tax basis.

RUS response. As noted in the definition section, both ratios use 'net income', denoting that the calculations are after income taxes.

Comment summary. The respondents requested that RUS eliminate the requirement that the weighted average life of the new private lender notes does not exceed the remaining weighted average life of the notes being refinanced, stating that in some cases, longer maturity periods that would reduce debt service payment could improve cash flow. In addition, the respondents requested that the terms of the loans be measured by the borrowers ability to repay the loan as indicated by TIER and Debt Service Coverage.

RUS response. Increasing the life of the loan beyond the remaining original life could have the effect of severely under-collateralizing the debt, thereby putting the lenders at risk of not having sufficient assets to provide adequate security. An open-ended maturity period, as suggested by relying on TIER and Debt Service Coverage indicators, only exacerbates the lenders' risks.

Comment summary. RUS should increase the principal amount of a loan from a private lender to refinance or refund the Government's loan from not greater than 105 percent of the balance of the notes being refunded or refinanced to not less than 112 percent, or eliminate the percentage limitation altogether. The respondents propose that this would allow borrowers to cover additional closing and fees associated with the new financing.

RUS response. RUS recognizes that loans from private lenders may contain fees and equity contribution requirements, and therefore, will raise the percentage limitation from not more than 105 percent to not more than 112 percent. This should provide a reasonable level at which borrowers seeking to finance closing costs and associated fees and equity contributions would be able to do so.

Comment summary. Sections 1744.30(c)(2)(iii) and (iv) could be in conflict with each other if the number of years remaining on a loan to be refinanced is less than five. Paragraph (c)(2)(iv) requires the refinancing to be amortized for a period of not less than five years.

RUS response. RUS agrees that there is the potential for conflict in the way the proposed rule worded those sections. The final rule has been modified to allow for the amortization period of the loan to be, at a minimum, the original remaining years to maturity.

Comment summary. The respondents stated a preference for a net assets to long-term debt test instead of the proposed net plant to long-term debt test in §§ 1744.30(d)(2) and 1744.30(e)(2). As stated in the rule, the ratio includes, on a pro-forma basis, the new private lender debt but does not include the plant associated with that debt. In addition, where the proceeds of the private lender debt go to a subsidiary, even if the formula accounted for the new assets, they would not be recorded on the borrower's balance sheet, thereby reducing the borrower's ability to meet the test. The respondents argued that using net assets, where the borrower owns assets that are not counted as plant, would be better since many borrowers have substantial assets that are not plant.

RUS response. The premise behind providing "automatic" lien accommodations is based on the strength of a borrower's financial condition and a negligible potential for loan security risk based on that strength. Using net plant rather than net assets counts only those assets on which the government's mortgage provides a perfected first lien. RUS has, however, revised the ratio test to include, on a pro-forma basis, the associated plant to be added by the private lender debt, when that plant is owned directly by the borrower. In the case of a borrower flowing through the proceeds of the private lender debt to a subsidiary, RUS believes that the borrower should have sufficient net plant need to provide RUS with adequate security necessary for the "automatic" lien accommodation, since the subsidiary's assets (financed through the lien accommodation) are not covered by the government's mortgage.

Comment summary. The respondents stated that RUS should consider including "non-plant" costs, such as transaction fees, working capital, and goodwill, associated with exchanges or purchases as eligible costs for lien accommodations under the regulation. They stated that these costs are typically contemplated in the purchase of existing systems as well as in new projects and that if private lenders were willing to finance these "non-plant" costs, RUS should not object to inclusion of these costs under the lien of the mortgage.

RUS response. The "soft costs" associated with the construction or acquisition of assets provide little or no tangible security. Accommodating payment of such costs under the lien of the mortgage would dilute the security of the other mortgage.

Comment summary. The respondents questioned the need for the certification from the borrower's CPA to the financial tests required in sections 1744(d)(5) and (e)(5), and stated that since RUS already had borrowers' CPA audits, certification should only be required when the audit had not yet been received by RUS.

RUS response. The CPA audit does not calculate nor attest to a borrower's achievement of TIER or Debt Service Coverage. The assurance provided by the CPA's certification of the borrower's achievement of the financial requirements is crucial to the "automatic" lien accommodation process. To expedite the process, borrowers may wish to have the CPA prepare the certification at the completion of the annual audit, thereby eliminating the need for further participation by the CPA.

Comment summary. The respondents objected to the provision that the financing agreement between the borrower and the private lender provide for the private lender to terminate advances on its loan to the borrower when the borrower is in default under the terms of its mortgage with RUS. They argue that this places an undue burden on the private lender that is contractually obligated to advance funds under the terms of its loan. The respondents stated that once the terms of the "automatic" lien accommodation have been met, RUS should take the risk for the facility financed. Further, the respondents stated that the burden should be placed on the borrower to cease the request for advances, not on the private lender.

RUS response. As a provision for obtaining an automatic lien accommodation (which does not require RUS approval when the criteria contained in the regulation are met), to protect the security for the Government's loans, the borrower should cease to incur additional private debt when it is in default on the Government's loans. Further, the respondents incorrectly view the burden as being placed on the private lender, and not on the borrower. The regulation clearly states that the financing agreement, a document prepared and executed prior to the advance of funds, contain the provision for termination of advance of funds upon request by RUS. In the event of a default, RUS would notify the borrower and the private lender so that they could comply with the termination of advance of funds provision. Therefore, notice to the private lender would not place the private lender under two inconsistent obligations.

Comment summary. Section 1744.30(e) pertains only to "wholly-owned" subsidiaries and is silent as to structures in which a borrower is a participant in a joint venture or partnership. The respondents argue that these types of projects are often undertaken for the mutual benefit of numerous telecommunications providers and that the regulation should make provision for these increasingly common ventures.

RUS response. At the present time, RUS believes that limiting the applicability of "automatic" lien accommodations to wholly-owned subsidiaries is prudent and in the best interest of protecting security for the Government's loans. Borrowers are, of course, not prevented from requesting approval for a lien accommodation under the traditional procedures for these types of projects. The comment is, however, beneficial and RUS will take it under advisement for future policy discussion.

Comment summary. The respondents argue that the financial tests in §§ 1744.30(e)(1) (TIER not less than 2.5 and DSC not less than 1.5) and (e)(3) (equity percentage not less than 45 percent) seem excessive and may result in most RUS or RTB borrowers failing to qualify for automatic lien accommodations when the assets are to be owned by a subsidiary.

RUS response. The financial tests required when the assets are to be owned by a subsidiary are more stringent, by design, and are intended to ensure that only the healthiest, strongest borrowers qualify, since there is no direct tie to assets being funded in relation to the security that RUS is giving up. By RUS' calculation, based on the most recent financial data available, 40% of RUS' telecommunications borrowers qualify.

As noted before, in the case of a borrower flowing through the proceeds of the private lender debt to a subsidiary, RUS believes that the borrower should have sufficient financial strength to provide RUS with adequate security, since the subsidiary's assets (financed through the lien accommodation) are not subject to the lien of the borrower's mortgage with RUS.

Comment summary. The respondents inquired whether an equity investment in a subsidiary, as opposed to a loan, would be permissible. In addition, the respondents believed there may be some conflict in RUS' treatment of loans to subsidiaries as investments allowed under the borrower's current mortgage with RUS.

RUS response. Equity investments or contributions are clearly different from loans with defined repayment terms and contractual agreements. RUS intended to only provide for loans to the subsidiary. RUS further has provided, in section 1744.30(i)(2), that such loans, when made in accordance with the terms of this regulation, do not require RUS approval as investments in affiliated companies, thereby releasing the borrower from obtaining "double" approval for the same investment.

Comment summary. Clarification was requested with regard to § 1744.30(e)(6)(vii), regarding the submission, upon request by RUS, of the financing or guarantee agreement between the borrower and the subsidiary.

RUS response. This section is only intended to ensure that RUS has the right to review the terms and conditions, if merited, of the borrower's loan or guarantee of a loan to its subsidiary. With regard to loan guarantees, where the debt exists at the subsidiary level, and the borrower is guaranteeing the debt, automatic approval of a lien accommodation under this section would permit the guarantee of the debt without having it count against the borrower's allowable distribution of capital as contained in the borrower's mortgage with RUS.

Comment summary. The respondents requested that RUS provide acknowledgement for an automatic lien accommodation to the private lender in addition to the acknowledgement to the borrower.

RUS response.

RUS agrees and will provide such acknowledgment.

List of Subjects in 7 CFR Part 1744

Accounting, Loan programs-communications, Reporting and recordkeeping requirements, Rural areas, Telephone.

For reasons set out in the preamble, RUS amends 7 CFR chapter XVII as follows:

PART 1744—POST-LOAN POLICIES AND PROCEDURES COMMON TO GUARANTEED AND INSURED TELEPHONE LOANS

1. The authority citation for part 1744 is revised to read as follows:

Authority: 7 U.S.C. 901 et seq., 1921 et seq., and 6941 et seq.

Subpart B—Lien Accommodations and Subordination Policy

2. Sections 1744.20 and 1744.21 are revised to read as follows:

§ 1744.20 General.

(a) Recent changes in the telecommunications industry, including deregulation and technological developments, have caused Rural Utilities Service (RUS) borrowers and other organizations providing telecommunications services to consider undertaking projects that provide new telecommunications services and other telecommunications services not ordinarily financed by RUS. Although some of these services may not be eligible for financing under the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (RE Act), these services may nevertheless advance RE Act objectives where the borrower obtains financing from private lenders. The borrower's financial strength and the assurance of repayment of outstanding Government debt may be improved as a result of providing such telecommunications services.

(b) To facilitate the financing of new services and other services not ordinarily financed by RUS, RUS is willing to consider accommodating the Government's lien on telecommunications borrowers' systems or accommodating or subordinating the Government's lien on after-acquired property of telecommunications borrowers. To expedite this process, requests for lien accommodations meeting the requirements of § 1744.30 will receive automatic approval from RUS.

(c) This subpart establishes RUS policy with respect to all requests for lien accommodations and subordinations for loans from private lenders. For borrowers that do not qualify for automatic lien accommodations in accordance with § 1744.30, RUS will consider lien accommodations for RE Act purposes under § 1744.40 and non-Act purposes under § 1744.50.

(5) Less accumulated amortization.	3400 through 3600s

Note: All references to account numbers are to the Uniform System of Accounts (7 CFR part 1770, subpart B).

Total equity or net worth means the excess of a borrower's total assets over its total liabilities.

Total liabilities means the sum of the balances of the following accounts of the borrower:

Account names	Number
(1) Current Liabilities	4010 through 4130.2
(2) Long-Term Debt	4210 through 4270.3
(3) Other Liabilities and Deferred Credits.	4310 through 4370

Note: All references to account numbers are to the Uniform System of Accounts (7 CFR part 1770, subpart B).

Total long-term debt means the sum of the balances of the following accounts of the borrower:

Account names	Number
(1) Long-Term Debt	4210 through 4270.3

Note: All references to account numbers are to the Uniform System of Accounts (7 CFR part 1770, subpart B).

Weighted-average life of the loans or notes means the average life of the loans or notes based on the proportion of original loan principal paid during each year of the loans or notes. It shall be determined by calculating the sum of all loan or note principal payments expressed as a fraction of the original loan or note principal amount, times the number of years and fractions of years elapsed at the time of each payment since issuance of the loan or note. For example, given a $5 million loan, with a maturity of 5 years and equal principal payments of $1 million due on the anniversary date of the loan, the weighted-average life would be: (.2)(1 year) + (.2)(2 years) + (.2)(3 years) + (.2)(4 years) + (.2)(5 years) = .2 years + .4 years + .6 years + .8 years + 1.0 years = 3.0 years. If instead the loan had a balloon payment of $5 million at the end of 5 years, the weighted-average life would be: ($5 million/$5 million)(5 years) = 5 years.

Weighted-average remaining life of the loans or notes means the remaining average life of the loans or notes based on the proportion of remaining loan or note principal expressed in years remaining to maturity of the loans or notes. It shall be determined by calculating the sum of the remaining principal payments of each loan or note expressed as a fraction of the total remaining loan or note amounts times the number of years and fraction of years remaining until maturity of the loan or note.

Weighted-average remaining useful life of the assets means the estimated original average life of the assets to be acquired with the proceeds of the private lender notes expressed in years based on depreciation rates less the number of years those assets have been in service (or have been depreciated). It shall be determined by calculating the sum of each asset's remaining value expressed as a fraction of the total remaining value of the assets, times the estimated number of years and fraction of years remaining until the assets are fully depreciated.

Wholly-owned subsidiary means a corporation owned 100 percent by the borrower.

3. Sections 1744.30, 1744.40, and 1744.50 are redesignated as §§ 1744.40, 1744.50, and 1744.55, respectively.
